WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today that Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's security affairs aide, was holding secret Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Kissinger, who flew to Paris Tuesday, was meeting with Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, North Vietnamese negotiators.

Ziegler said Kissinger would return to Washington late Wednesday.

Until Ziegler talked to newsmen today there had been a veil of secrecy over Kissinger's whereabouts.

Kissinger did not return to Washington with President Nixon from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., Tuesday.

During previous absences from the public eye, Kissinger has gone to Peking and also engaged in secret talks on the Vietnam war.

The chief North Vietnamese negotiator, Le Duc Tho, said in Paris over the weekend he would be willing to meet with Kissinger again if he had something new to discuss on the war.

Egyptian Move Could Avert War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt's decision to oust Soviet military advisers and to take over military installations the Russians have been manning in Egypt aroused guarded optimism among some Israelis today that it might lessen prospects of war in the near future. Others thought it might remove a restraining influence.

The Egyptian move announced Tuesday also raised questions about Cairo's future relations with the Kremlin.

There was no official Israeli comment. One source said the government was waiting to see if the Russians really withdrew.

Israeli newspapers described Egypt's action both as "daring" and "dangerous." The Jerusalem Post said the Soviet withdrawal could clear the way for Egypt to undertake "some kind of military adventure," but Cairo could not think in terms of major war without active Soviet assistance.

The Independent Haaretz said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "has given in to pressure from his army officers hostile to the Russians."

Initial Reaction

Silence was the initial reaction of the Soviet government to the action by a government in which it has invested billions of dollars. But some diplomats in Cairo speculated that the Kremlin and not Sadat was responsible for the withdrawal as the result of a secret agreement during President Nixon's visit to Moscow to phase down Soviet-American activity in the Middle East.

Announcing that his own soldiers will replace Soviet advisers and experts, Sadat said the Russians had let him down by not delivering arms promised in 1971 for confrontation with Israel.

The president also indicated friction over Soviet attempts to restrict the use of arms supplied Egypt. He said he had rejected such attempts and made clear on a visit to Moscow in April that Egypt would not tolerate dictation of its military policies.

Essence of Friendship

Sadat said the Russian ouster "does not touch in any way the essence of Soviet-Egyptian friendship" but it is necessary, he declared, to set "a new style for the coming stage of our friendship."

Even before Sadat's speech, an exodus of Russian officers from Egypt was visible, causing diplomats and officials in Cairo to buzz with speculation.

The president said the withdrawal order became effective Monday but he did not make clear how many Soviets were involved. Informants in Cairo estimated the number at 10,000 to 20,000.

In Washington, it was estimated that 15,000 Russian military men were in Egypt, about half of them advisers and experts and the rest attached to Soviet units assigned to the Mediterranean and to Egyptian air defense.

The order did not apply to another 10,000 to 15,000 Russian civilian advisers on engineering and industrial projects, and the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said it would not affect instructors to the Egyptian armed forces who train the Egyptians to use the equipment Moscow supplies.

The training personnel started coming to Egypt in 1967, and be Egyptian property. However, this could be used to cloak a symbolic Egyptian takeover, with the Russians continuing to operate missile sites and other advanced equipment.

Sadat's announcement said, "All military installations and equipment which have been constructed inside Egyptian territory following the 1967 June aggression should be put under Egyptian armed forces."

U.S. Watching Soviets, Egypt

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are keeping close watch on Soviet deployment in Egypt amid some skepticism here over how many Russians actually will pull out.

President Anwar Sadat's surprise announcement of an end to "the mission of Soviet military advisers and experts" underscored the most serious Moscow-Cairo dispute since Russian military personnel were invited into Egypt two years ago.

Sadat also said that "all the military equipment and installations set up within Egyptian territory ... are to be the exclusive property of the Arab Republic of Egypt and under the administration of our armed forces."

But the Cairo announcement gave no figures on how many of an estimated 15,000 Russians who have been training and advising Egyptian forces and manning Soviet units in Egypt was supposed to leave.

13 Charged in Drug Deals In Outagamie, Winnebago

Fox Valley and state authorities late this morning were continuing their roundup of 13 investigation, started this morning men charged with a total of 20 counts of trafficking dangerous drugs and narcotics, including heroin, in Outagamie and Winnebago counties.

The arrests, which followed several months of undercover work, started this morning. However, only a few of the defendants had appeared in court as of noon.

Wisconsin Atty. General Robert W. Warren said the criminal complaints were authorized by Outagamie County Dist. Atty. James R. Long and Winnebago County Dist. Atty. William Carver. Arrest warrants were signed by Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer and Circuit Judge William E. Crane of Oshkosh.

Inmates Rebel In Maryland

Outbreak Is Third Since Saturday in State's Prisons

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Police and state troopers were put on standby alert after an inmate rebellion erupted again early today at Prince Georges County Jail following a disturbance Tuesday night in which three guards were taken hostage and then released.

Most of the alleged sales of drugs and narcotics were made to undercover agents of the Wisconsin Department of Justice, who were aided by police men from the two counties and from a number of Fox Valley cities, Warren said.

Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin L. Spice said it was the first heroin-related arrest in the county. Heroin did not figure in any of the 11 charges lodged in Winnebago County, Carver's office said.

The outbreaks were the third since Saturday at a Maryland penal institution.

Inmates became involved in the disturbance about 2:30 a.m. but no outside forces were called in. County police said. The inmates returned to their cells about an hour later and no outside force was needed.

Most of the charges involved the sale of marijuana and hashish. At least two of the suspects have been charged with the sales of hundreds of "hits" of LSD. The sales of amphetamines also figured in some of the counts.

Warren said his department began its investigation early this year on the basis of information furnished by a number of local police agencies. Spice said his narcotics squad also has been working with the state agents and participated in today's arrests.

Officials said there was some damage, but no injuries were reported.

Officials earlier blamed hot, muggy weather and previous prison disturbances in the state for the Tuesday night uprising, which ended when inmates released their hostages unharmed some 3½ hours after taking over the second floor of the 100-prisoner facility.

Arthur H. Bremer, 21, who is awaiting a July 31 trial on charges stemming from the assassination attempt on Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, was confined in a first-floor annex cell and was not involved in any of the trouble, officials said.

"It's a cyclical thing. You get one, you generally get more," Lt. Col. John W. Rhoads, assistant county police chief, said in response to questions about the connections between the jail disturbance and earlier rioting at two state prisons.

"They probably were related. When they saw what happened at the other two facilities, they got the idea."

Rhoads and other county officials were unable to say exactly what sparked the disturbance.

The bill was brought up in the Senate Monday, but Republicans quickly countered with a substitute pushed by President Nixon that would put the minimum at $2 and eliminate many provisions of the Democratic proposal.

The substitute is strongly opposed by the AFL-CIO. Senate Democrats said they hope to defeat it.

They said they were particularly anxious to demonstrate their commitment to labor on the issue because of the unpopularity of some AFL-CIO leaders

July 20. St. Arnold is being held in the county jail on a $1,000 bond.

Jailed and awaiting arraignment is Thomas Howser, 22, 216 S. Douglas St., Appleton, who is charged with two sales of marijuana, one sale of 100 hits of LSD and the sale of two grams of heroin, for $200, on May 23.

Two of the men still being sought in Outagamie County face one count each and one faces two counts, some of those counts involving substantial amounts of LSD.

Four of eight suspects have been taken into custody in Winnebago County as of late this morning. None had appeared in court.

Carver's office identified those in custody as Joseph Ellis, 20, 639 Lake St., Neenah, two counts of selling marijuana; Brian Murray, 22, 1124 Elmwood Ave., Oshkosh, two counts of marijuana sale; Paul Lowther, 21, 716 Lincoln Ave., Oshkosh, one count of selling marijuana, and Michael J. Lyster, 21, 1124 Elmwood Ave., Oshkosh, two counts of selling marijuana.

Some LSD is involved in the five counts against the four persons who have not been apprehended, authorities said.

Politics Blamed for Delay In Minimum Wage Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The over the Democratic national ticket.

After a series of cloakroom huddles, an agreement was reached among Senate leaders to vote Thursday on the key issue of the GOP substitute.

The agreement also provides that a vote on final passage of the measure will take place before Thursday night.

They said the minimum wage bill tops the list of AFL-CIO concerns in the 1972 session, and that the South Dakota AFL-CIO executive council meeting today to discuss the labor by flying to Washington to question of a presidential endorsement.

The Democratic-sponsored bill would boost the wage floor from $1.60 to $2.20 an hour and make other changes in the law. It is of particular importance to the AFL-CIO.

The bill was brought up in the Senate Monday, but Republicans quickly countered with a substitute pushed by President Nixon that would put the minimum at $2 and eliminate many provisions of the Democratic proposal.

The Democrats said Republicans felt that pushing the $2 bill in advance of the vote to council session might hurt them with labor.

The role of Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic standard bearer, also came in for comment from some Democrats.

Other provisions would repeal exemptions from overtime now covering many union men that could mean money in their pockets.

McGovern's office said he had no plans to interrupt his rest and planning vacation in South Dakota to return here to vote on the minimum wage legislation.

U.S. Might Soon be Burning Oil, Gas From Soviet Union

By LINDA RUBEY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Will you someday be heating your home with oil from the Soviet Union? Or driving your car with gasoline from Western Siberia?

There's no way we can avoid a dramatic increase in our dependence on imported oil in the next 15 years, said E.B. Walker, executive vice president of Gulf Oil Corp. "We don't have enough domestic oil and gas to meet our growing needs and it's going to take a lot of money and a lot of time to develop synthetic fuels."

The American Petroleum Institute notes that for every four barrels of domestic oil taken out of the ground in 1971 the U.S. imported one, making imports account for 25.6 per cent of U.S. consumption last year. In 1961, imports were 19.3 per cent of U.S. consumption.

It is not so far fetched as it first appears.

For Tuesday the U.S.-owned Occidental Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles announced a five-year technical cooperation agreement with the Soviet Union. Experts in London said the most important part of the agreement was likely to be technical and financial assistance by Occidental in return for supplies of Soviet crude oil and natural gas.

These experts said the oil deal raises the prospect of Soviet oil and gas eventually flowing to the United States.

The potential American usage of Soviet oil is still in the future, but it underscores the burgeoning American dependence on foreign oil. Petroleum industry leaders attribute the dependence on a growing energy crisis here and the shortage of domestic reserves. Not only is the dependence pushing prices up, they say, it isn't likely to ease until new energy sources are developed.

It is estimated that foreign oil accounts for more than a fourth of U.S. consumption. For nations with the world's biggest reserves want more control, and American oilmen say there's no way out of the dilemma in the next decade.

The McGovern Tapes

TOP SECRET

From H. Miami Florida
I bugged the McGovern headquarters as per your instructions. Sorry for tardiness of transcript of tapes, but they were typed by Cuban refugees who planned Bay of Pigs operation.

Here in a nutshell is what we found out by listening in to his Dorset Hotel suite.

Despite denials McGovern is still a stalking horse for Teddy Kennedy. The plan is for McGovern to campaign until November. Then, if he wins the election, he will ask Kennedy to be sworn in as president in his place. The McGovern strategists figure this is the only way Kennedy will accept the presidency in 1972.

In exchange for bowing out as president, McGovern is going to be rewarded by being made secretary of agriculture. This will help him with his electorate in South Dakota. The Kennedy people have agreed to this in principle.

The tapes also indicate that the reason the McGovern strategists selected Tom Eagleton as the vice presidential candidate is that the American people are ready for a calm administration after the excitement of Nixon's last four years.

They feel the people will buy the steady plodding manner of McGovern and Eagleton after living with the swinging glamorous Nixons.

"Fed Up"

This is a direct quote from the tapes by McGovern's top advisers:

"The people are fed up with style. We have to adopt Nixon's charisma, but Americans want something more."

Right. They're tired of reading about those wild bowling parties at Camp David and those raucous prayer breakfasts at the White House.

"You can say that again. They're sick of all the stories about Pat Nixon's clothes and her hairdresser."

"Not to mention David and Julie's high jinks in the Navy."

"Let's offer them a candidate — two candidates who may not set the world on fire like the Nixons do, but at least have substance."

The rest of the tape is blurred.

The bugging also revealed that the McGovern people plan to make the big issue of the campaign non-union lettuce. They're going to claim Agnew has eaten 3,456 salads at fund-raising dinners since he's been Vice President and not one of the leaves had a union label on it.

Brainstorming

There were some serious brainstorming sessions on how McGovern was going to end the war in Vietnam. The plan is to announce just before November that if the Democrats are elected to the White House the President will promote Colonel Harlan Sanders of Kentucky Fried Chicken fame to general and put him in charge of the withdrawal of all American troops.

Also the tapes revealed it was no accident that McGovern and Eagleton made their acceptance speeches in Miami Beach at 3 o'clock in the morning.

This was part of McGovern's strategy to put a coalition of minorities together to win the election. The only minority McGovern hadn't won over to his side were the people who can't sleep at night.

By going on all three networks at 3 o'clock Friday morning the McGovern forces sewed up the insomniac vote. Nobody else ever paid any attention to insomniacs before and they could easily swing the election.

Hearing on Sanitary District Set

Town of Harrison Residents Petition For Formation

SHERWOOD — A public hearing has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Aug. 8 in the Harrison Town Hall regarding the petition presented last week for the formation of a sanitary district in the Waverly Beach area, along Lake Winnebago, and in the Stacker Plat.

The petition, presented by Hugh Nelson, an Appleton attorney and resident of the area, contained the names of 75-80 per cent of the property owners. A total of 51 per cent is necessary before action can be taken.

If town officials favor the proposal, which has been urged by the Department of Natural Resources, Department of Health and Social Services and the Calumet County Planning Department, a sanitary commission will be organized.

At last week's meeting, about six residents of Firelane 10 and Shore Acres subdivision asked that this fringe area be deleted. They also asked how to have signatures, which they claimed were obtained "under false pretenses," erased from the petition.

A citizen committee, appointed by the town board at the request of electors after a public informational meeting last winter, circulated the petition.

UWO Program To be Aired by Chicago Station

OSHKOSH — The televised course on "Drug Use — And Abuse" prepared by the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh College of Continuing Education is hitting the "big time."

Dean Harold D. Crouse said that WLS-TV (Channel 7) of Chicago has requested permission to televise the program. It will be presented on a noncredit basis.

The series includes 30 television programs of 45 minutes each prepared under the direction of Dr. Robert Lane of the UW-Oshkosh psychology department as host professor. It features as guest instructors persons from the field of medicine, psychiatry, law, pharmacology, journalism, social work and education.

There was some discussion on whether instructional capital outlay and repairs in the school should be submitted to the consolidated school board, but it was noted that when the two parishes consolidated, each parish agreed to maintain its own school.

Explanation was given on why the consolidated school board voted 11-2 to hire a part-time teacher, after the matter was turned down at the Sherwood parish meeting. Parish gave up its house sister and part-time teacher aide at $2,500 each to hire a part-time teacher at Sherwood for $3,000, thus saving $2,000 of the budget.

Neenah Foundry Marks Centenary

The Neenah Foundry Co. is 100 years old this year.

The newly refurbished company was started in 1872 by William Aylward Sr., great-grandfather of the current president. It was known as Aylward Plow Works and located at what is now Lake and Main streets in Neenah.

With two employees, Aylward began by making plowshares to include tours of the plants.

"It has been an enlightening and humble experience to relive these first 100 years of our company," Aylward says. "My great-grandfather brought to life more than a small business in the then little-known town of Neenah, Wisconsin. He started in motion an enterprise which has proven to be unique — a family business which is now in the fourth generation and a leader in the industry."

"The company bears little, if any, resemblance to the company which was founded in 1872. How it will look 100 years from now can stagger the imagination."

Aylward

supply the surrounding farm community's needs.

Today, the company is something that his great-grandfather surely never dreamed of, says E. W. Aylward, the current president. While the firm isn't as large as some corporations go, it is a "giant within its industry," he says.

Its production capacity is 800 tons per day and its employment is 1,200. It ranks as one of the largest independently owned gray and ductile iron foundries in the nation.

The firm's three plants are in Neenah. One is on Winnebago Avenue and primarily a small- and medium-sized industrial castings producer. The main offices also are there.

50,000 Tons
The second on Byrd and Aylward streets, will produce over 50,000 tons of casting this year. The third adjacent to the second, is highly mechanized to produce larger industrial castings of both gray and ductile iron.

The company's markets are worldwide, Aylward says. It is probably best known for producing construction casting over 24,000 designs, including many sizes, shapes and styles of manhole covers, catch basins, inlet and pit covers, which are used to drain airport runways, highways and streets, as well as to provide access to underground utility systems.

The industrial castings produced represent half of the company's output. They are used as component parts by manufacturers in lawn mowers, tractors, trucks, washing machines, industrial motors, machine tools, hydraulic systems, and many other pieces of equipment.

People, Planning
The company attributes its success in achieving industry leadership to primarily to "people" and "planning." It has been operated by the Aylward family throughout its history, and since 1958, "Bill" Aylward, has been at the helm.

"The company has, over the years, been recognized for quality, service and reliability," he said. "Many people have contributed to achieve that reputation."

"Always, there has been the philosophy that the company is in business to serve its customers and increase its position as a leader in the industry. This has stimulated reinvestment of profits, plant modernizations, technological developments, creation of new markets, and most important, the development of a fine organization of people to formulate and carry out those plans."

The firm has slated several functions including a June 15 ceremonial dinner and program held for a group of business and civic leaders in the community. The public open house is scheduled July 28 and will

Church Plans Christmas in July Celebration

A "Christmas in July" celebration to keep the spirit alive throughout the year and also large as some corporations go, raise funds for the mission program, will be observed today through Sunday by St. John United Church of Christ congregation.

A workshop Wednesday afternoon, followed by a 5:30 p.m. potluck supper, will begin the event. Members of the parish will be making Christmas cookies and stockings, which will be filled with donations and hung on the mission tree.

At 6:30 p.m. Thursday, the members will go caroling to the nursing homes and homes of shut-ins.

A Christmas worship service at 9:15 a.m. Sunday will conclude the observance.

Sacred Heart Parish Tables Plan To Erect Building for Its Picnic

SHERWOOD — The possibility of erecting a 40 x 100-foot steel building on Sacred Heart until bids were received and parish grounds to replace two or three tents used at the annual parish picnic, was tabled from special donations.

at the annual parish meeting Monday, until parishioners are informed on the matter.

The proposition was not on the agenda although bids had been sought by the picnic committee.

The proposed building the same as that recently constructed by the Village of Hilbert at its Civic Park, also could be used by youth and service clubs in the village. Sol Stingle, picnic chairman, told the group of about 50 persons as he urged them to support the plan.

Stingle also pointed out the work that goes into setting up tents for the annual picnic, the cost of a big picnic, and the funds netted from the picnic now in the 20th year. Some tents would still be needed, it was agreed.

The sear had been won from Kern Construction Company. H-bert was $6,548 with a one per cent discount if paid on completion. A verbal bid given by Fredrick Construction as part of the state's prison system.

The structure would need state approval before construction could begin. Stingle asked January when construction approval would be given. He would be completing the plans for the building by the end of the year. The August 15 deadline was planned and far ahead of the previous plan for the building.

Parishioners objected to the proposal because it was not on the announced agenda and the cost of the building was not known at the time of the meeting. The rest of the parishioners felt about having a building of this type on their property. The motion to table the matter included scheduling a special meeting to discuss the proposal, but no date was given.

No action was taken on repair or replacement of the boiler in the school; installation of a bubbler in the basement which was turned down by the parish council, or the introduction of other methods of financing the school, which accounts for nearly 50 per cent of the annual budget. The budget for the consolidated school for teacher's salaries, books and incidentals — was raised $183 over the previous year.

There was some discussion on whether instructional capital outlay and repairs in the school should be submitted to the consolidated school board, but it was noted that when the two parishes consolidated, each parish agreed to maintain its own school.

Explanation was given on why the consolidated school board voted 11-2 to hire a part-time teacher, after the matter was turned down at the Sherwood parish meeting. Parish gave up its house sister and part-time teacher aide at $2,500 each to hire a part-time teacher at Sherwood for $3,000, thus saving $2,000 of the budget.

Aid and Elderly Often Don't Mesh

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

There are government programs to feed, shelter and provide medical aid for the elderly, but in far too many cases they don't reach those who need the help. One Outagamie County welfare department official estimated that fewer than half of those potentially eligible for certain benefits were not receiving them.

The system must share part of the blame — the elderly are scared off by forms to fill out. They also fear the close scrutiny that complicated eligibility requirements bring on. But there are other reasons why the elderly and the much-needed assistance aren't getting together. The older persons' pride about staying off welfare rolls and their ignorance of what help is available to them.

It's the latter obstacle that those working with the elderly feel can be eliminated or reduced.

Telephone Number

Mrs. Doris Cobb, executive director of Oneida Heights, Appleton's low-cost apartment for the elderly, says there should be a telephone number — just one number — which the elderly could call to get information on where and how they could get help. Others who understand the elderly persons' problems agree.

The state Division of Aging is on a similar track. Duane Willadsen, administrator of the division in the state Department of Health and Social Services, says the state is seeking to set up a referral program for many groups, including the elderly.

The program isn't set up yet — and probably won't be for a few months, he said, but when it is, it is expected to provide information for the elderly, persons interested in planned parenthood, those seeking aid to families with dependent children and others.

He said several agencies have applied to be the district referral agency for the Fox Valley. All selections of referral agencies won't be made until after Aug. 1, he added.

Referrals

Willadsen has no illusions that this is going to eliminate the gap between programs and people, but he hopes it will help. Mrs. Cobb and Raymond Kaskey, deputy director of the Outagamie County Department of Social Services, agreed that referrals would go a long way to help.

The county social services department handles most of the assistance programs under the heading of Old Age Assistance. This includes food stamps, medical assistance and the subsidizing of inadequate incomes.

The Appleton City Welfare Department has provided emergency assistance on occasions but normally refers the elderly to the county, which handles county programs and medicare eligibility.

Kaskey says that if a person 65 or older qualifies for old age assistance, he may receive both the financial (income subsidy) and medical benefits. The income subsidy varies with individuals, he added, and in many cases, it is so small (as little as $1 per month) that the recipient doesn't bother collecting it.

Liquid Assets

To qualify, the elderly person must have an income below the state standard but he or she can own a home, have up to $750 in liquid assets, (which most reserve for burial purposes) and an auto valued at not more than $750, Kaskey says. He also must not have more than $1,000 cash value in an insurance policy, or he must dispose of this additional cash value in it.

The elderly can earn money and still qualify, Kaskey adds. The county department's

Farm Progress Fight Pledged

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz is ready to battle to keep his present farm program and expects a fight in Congress over the 1973 farm act.

The present plan, enacted in 1970, discarded many traditional restrictions on crop production. It depends on requiring only that farmers idle lands. Butz told an estimated 450 state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service officials that the present plan can't preserve agriculture. Any other plan would be a backward step stunting farm growth, he said.

The Democratic Party platform farm plank just wouldn't work, he said. Taking a swipe at Democratic nominee George McGovern, he recalled that the South Dakota Senator had opposed him as Secretary of Agriculture calling him a "disaster for Agriculture." Returning the compliment Butz said, "I feel precisely the same way about him as President."

Not Honest

He said the party platform promising 90 per cent of parity is unrealistic. "Anybody who promises that is not on top of the facts or is intellectually dishonest."

Butz said farmers must "move aggressively" for new farm legislation to avoid a restrictive farm program.

"I want a maximum degree of freedom for that farmer to manage his farming the way he wants."

Farmers know where their markets are far better than Washington planners, he said.

He referred to a seven-man board which recently created farm policy for the national wheat Development Corp. of Milwaukee. He had moved there from Appleton in 1970.

Attacking restrictions on planting he said both farmers and consumers are happier plan won't be passed by Congress when land is used to produce goods not obeyed by farmers, he said.

"Let our farmers produce." Then, he said, expanding export markets must be developed. He also said "The agricultural muscle in prices can't be artificially gone in Washington and in Madison."

If the government gets in the business of legislating prices it might well reduce them to satisfy consumers, he said. Tremendous pressure seeking ceilings on beef prices is a prime example of that pressure, said Butz.

"I put my vote on the market-dominated agriculture."

Consumers have no right to ask for cheaper food than they are getting. Cut-rate food is "not the birthright of Americans who can afford to pay for it," he said as applause broke out.

Food already is subsidized, he said, and should not be subsidized further. Federal payments to farmers were 4.25 billion of the net 18 billion farm income last year, he said.

That means 22 per cent of farm income is subsidy which is too much dependence on federal aid. A market-oriented plan, such as the present set-aside program, will guide agriculture away from such dependence, he said.

Butz listed four goals of his farm program: — An adequate income for farmers. — Freedom for farmers to manage their own operations without government interference. — A good agricultural system which benefits the non-farm economy. — A peaceful world, which largely might be brought about through use of agriculture as a diplomatic tool.

He warned officials that tight federal controls to boost farm prices could backfire. Such a diplomatic tool.

Library Requests More Aid

A revised formula for county circulation outside the municipal aid to municipal libraries in Appleton, the county provides aid to the seven libraries in Outagamie County to recognize increased operating costs might in Outagamie County in recognition of service provided to areas outside the county boundaries. Only those libraries without libraries are taxed for the aid.

Committee chairman George Schroeder, after listening to a plea Tuesday night from the Kimberly village and library board, said, "I would support a 1972, the total aid provided by the county was $31,854. After its size than other libraries, that figure was arrived at, the noted."

Under a complicated formula division among the seven libraries involving population and library

Kimberly received slightly more than $1,400.

"This is just a drop in the bucket compared to the number of people served outside our aid represents less than 10 per cent of the library's operating budget," Kimberly President Eugene Schellhout told the committee.

Schellhout said the Kimberly library was in a unique situation because neither Little Chute nor Combined Locks had libraries. "Our facility gets more use for $3.84 per cent, rural residents, 5.04 per cent, and Appleton residents, 3.26 per cent. There also are a few Kaukauna cardholders," he said.

Jo Ann Fleming, Kimberly librarian, reported that for the

VTAE-12 Board Makes Final Salary Offer to Teachers

A final offer in salary contracts, along with a deadline date for its acceptance, has been issued to Fox Valley Technical Institute instructors by the Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12 board.

The board took the unanimous action Tuesday after its salary committee recommended the offer, which deals primarily with retroactive pay.

On June 19, the salary committee met with the faculty association committee and presented the board's final offer of a 5.5 per cent total salary increase.

The faculty committee was further informed, the salary committee report states, that the board was willing to issue checks to each teacher for retroactive pay to Nov. 15, 1971 "in accordance with the schedule previously delivered to the faculty committee."

This would amount to 5.5 per cent in aggregate, including 100 per cent for life insurance premiums, the report adds.

Restriction on Offer Attached to the final offer is a recommendation that in the event the faculty association does not accept the offer of determining the increments, retroactive pay prior to the next board meeting Aug. 15, the offer be withdrawn.

The recommendation was made by Donald Steinfert, Oshkosh, who has been in charge of the negotiations for the board.

A number of the teachers from the faculty committee attended the meeting but made no comment about it after the approval. They did meet, however, in a closed session with board members after the regular meeting, but apparently made no headway in the lengthy negotiation struggle.

"We have to meet with our lawyer and decide what our course of action will be," stated Lee Button, head of the faculty association negotiation team.

The dispute has gone on for a year and a half and has involved a fact finder to look over the two major areas of impasse.

Despite the lengthy affair, the base salaries have not been the issue. Both parties had agreed to a base salary increase of $400, from $7,300 to $7,700.

The differences have been wholly in regard to the salary structure — the method of adjustments.

After some discussion of design, the board decided to hire the architectural firm of Schutte and Mochoy, designers of FVTL, to work on the

The biggest cost increase has been in building maintenance. When the Kimberly library was in its old one-room quarters, maintenance cost was $1,374 for 1969. In the first full year in their new building, the cost was cited as $7,834.

Possible Closing Schellhout said the circulation figures also did not reflect the use the building is getting since moving into the new municipal building. "It appears," Schellhout said, "that a community which takes pride in what it does suffers."

Supv. Francis Coonen suggested shutting off Combined Locks and Little Chute might produce some action on their part to pay some of the costs.

Schellhout said has been seriously considered by the village board but the village wants to avoid having to do it. "That's why we're here," he said.

All Libraries in Trouble Bernard Vanden Boogard, a member of the village board, warned, however, that if nothing is done by 1974, "Kimberly will then be to various council committees responsible for that department."

Kaukauna May Get Executive Budget

KAUKAUNA — Council members Tuesday night asked Mayor Robert La Plante to meet with various department heads in an effort to arrive at a "workable" 1973 budget for the city.

The suggestion was made by Ald. Lloyd Kloehn (2nd), who said this could be a step toward future legislation calling for an executive budget. He pointed out that the mayor worked more closely with department heads and should be more acquainted with the needs of various departments.

La Plante, who was elected in April, said, "I'm relatively new to the job, but wasn't this always done in the past?"

Kloehn said department heads prepared budgets and submitted them to various council committees responsible for that department.

Adams Bucks Vote On Insurance Pact

MENASHA — Mayor James Adams, for the second time in three weeks, will veto common council action designating the McClone Agency of Menasha as the city's public liability and workmen's compensation insurance carrier.

"I'm committed to the low quotation," the mayor said today. "I don't care if it's Peter Pan."

Adams was angered at the 7-4 council vote selecting McClone. The action came despite an earlier insurance board recommendation that picked the Sentry Insurance Co. and despite the fact that Sentry offered a lower premium than the local insurance firm.

"I'm also coming in with an ordinance at the next council meeting to disband the insurance board," said Adams. "Why have it?"

Council President Herbert Batley added a new charge to the on-going insurance squabble Tuesday night when he said the voting of some members of the insurance board was effected "because of personalities, and I'm not referring to the aldermen, either."

That leaves Adams and City Clerk George Protogere, who supported Sentry.

In the past, Sixth Ward Ald. Robert Winarski has charged that free football tickets from McClone helped persuade members of the council to vote for him as carrier.

Prior to the mid-June council meeting, the insurance board recommended McClone as the carrier, despite the fact that McClone was under-bid by two other firms including Sentry.

The mayor vetoed that action, and new quotations were called for. Only two companies submitted quotations (four did the first time), and the board selected Sentry because it gave the low quote.

Sentry offered both policies for $19,435, while McClone offered two coverages for $19,829. That's a difference of $394.

"There's no point in having an insurance board, when the council turns around and overrides it anyway," said Adams today.

A mayoral veto of the council action taken on a 7-4 vote would be sustained, if that vote remained unchanged. It takes nine votes to override a mayoral veto.

The city's present coverage under McClone runs out on July 30, which is the end of a 30-day extension of the old policy granted by the company so that the city could come to terms on a carrier for the coming year.

The next council meeting is August 1.

If the mayor's veto stands, it will leave the city without a carrier. And there is no reason not to expect the council to select McClone again, if new bids are advertised for.

Is there a way to end the hassle? Adams was asked.

"Sure, the council can accept the low quotation," he said.

Adams, noting the fact that two original bidders on the two insurance policies did not bid the second time, said: "Maybe next time, there won't be any bidders."

"You're not going to get anyone to want to continue to submit bids if you continue this practice" of not accepting the low bids, said Clerk Protogere today.

City Atty. Richard Steffens expressed concern after Tuesday's meeting that the city would be left without a carrier after July 30.

The council did vote on a motion by Third Ward Ald. Summer Parker to designate the Sentry company the carrier, but that lost on the same 7-4 vote that soon afterward gave McClone the contract.

Those voting for McClone were Alds. Herbert Batley, Hugh (Bud) Geibel, Erwin Rooke, Felix Ropella Jr., Joseph VanLieshout, Raymond Zielski and Walter Remmel.

Those voting for Sentry were Alds. Richard Heindl, Robert LaCount, Charles Heinz and Parker.

Batley, in a pre-vote speech, said he was sticking with McClone because he felt the city should not switch carriers unless the difference between bidders was greater. He also said that Walter Strong, a former industrial executive who worked in the area of insurance and who is now a member of the insurance board, supported staying with McClone because of an aversion to switching and because McClone is a local company.

Batley said it would be an "injustice" to buck the expertise of a man like Strong. Strong was the only member of the insurance board voting Monday who favored McClone. Adams, Alds. Robert LaCount and Parker and Protogere all picked Sentry.

Heinz bristled at Batley's statement. "I don't think it's wise to take the recommendation of any one member of a board," he said.

VanLieshout made the motion to accept the McClone quotation, saying that the city had been with that carrier for ten years and that it would be "inadvisable" to switch carriers for the "slight difference" (394) in premium offers from McClone and Sentry.

VanLieshout said aldermen should "recognize the contributions that Mr. Strong has made for many years."

Heinz called it "a nice speech again, Joe," but said that if Strong is the only one to be followed on the board, "Maybe I should get off the board."

VanLieshout said there are openings on the board which should be filled with "more competent people" than he and other aldermen.

"The McClone Agency has done a terrific service for the city over the past ten years," he concluded.

Batley noted the many "good things" the McClone firm has done as the city's insurance carrier, and Heinz agreed. But "does that mean that other companies are not qualified?" he asked.

Ald. Richard Heindl, waving a pile of papers, said some city employees were not happy with the service McClone has furnished.

Batley had an exhibit from the McClone Agency which showed that the variable dividend plan that that firm offers has resulted in $13,797 in dividends paid back to the city over five years while the usual 20 per cent dividend plan offered by Sentry would have only yielded 1,283 less than that.

Ambulance Pact Okayed In Winnebago

OSHKOSH — An extension of the county ambulance service contract through Dec. 31 — instead of the 12 month extension which had been recommended — was authorized Tuesday night by a 29-12 vote of the Winnebago County board.

The board voted unanimously to provide $6,089 from the contingency fund to finance the contract for the balance of the year.

The shortening of the time was introduced before the board as an amendment by Supv. Earl Holverson. Towns of Poygan, Wolf River, and Winchester, which had the effect of continuing the life of the present contract through Dec. 31, instead of through June 30, 1973, which was recommended in the original resolution by the judiciary and public safety committee.

One rejected a bid, the only one received, for apron and taxiway extension work at Wittman Field.

Awarded contracts for several other projects at the airport.

Refused to retain a citizen member on the county zoning committee and board of adjustments by a vote of 29-14.

Amended a county board rule, which in effect, means the public hearing on the 1973 budget will be held at 7 p.m. on Nov. 8.

Amended 38-3, a lease agreement with the county fair association which permits the fair board to retain up to $50,000 in its treasury, instead of the present $35,000.

Refused, by a vote of 26-15, to continue supplements to county court reporters.

at Wittman "his reason enough to believe that another airline might consider giving the service," Brock said.

The survey, which was prepared by two students from the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh computer science department, headed by Michael Meeker, was interpreted for reporters during the press conference held Tuesday at the Airport.

Meeker, the two students, John Stroemer, and James Jossie, and the officials of two of four participating Chambers of Commerce were present. The four participating in the preparation and costs of the report were the chambers from Oshkosh, Neenah-Menasha, Fond du Lac, and Appleton.

Louis Micheln, executive vice-president of the Oshkosh chamber, said the report was viewed as an invaluable tool, for businesses large and small within the community. Micheln said the chambers, which each have copies, "look at it as a planning aid, and one of their goals is to improve air service for their members."

Brock, who said North Central and Air Wisconsin, the Appleton-based commuter airline, both have copies of the report.

"If it was up to me," Brock declared, "I'd get one (another airline) in here tomorrow."

Meeker emphasized that the report, which contained extensive information gathered from passengers enplaning at Wittman for the week of March 7-13 and mail surveys sent to industries throughout the Fox Valley, said it was never to be considered to be an interpretive report, but instead, an exercise in data processing by the students.

The survey of the passengers revealed, according to the report, that slightly over 28 per cent of them originated in Oshkosh, about 18.5 per cent of them in Neenah, 12.3 per cent in Appleton, and 10.7 per cent in Fond du Lac.

Twenty-two per cent of the passengers who boarded aircraft during the week, resided in Oshkosh, 7.5 per cent resided in Appleton, 7.9 per cent in Fond du Lac, and 13.4 in Neenah.

Meeker said of all those who boarded aircraft during the test week, forms were completed by more than 60 per cent of them.

Butz Praises Plymouth Farmer

FOND DU LAC — Lonny Bigler is the kind of farmer American Agriculture needs — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz says so.

Butz called the 33-year-old route 1, Plymouth dairyman and his family before an audience of an estimated 800 here to praise him as the kind of man who makes a family farm work.

Bigler, a former Kohler plant foreman, quit factory work to start a dairy farm on 40 acres of land. Today he owns 150 acres, milks 32 dairy cows in a herd of 68 and has a net worth of from $20,000 to $25,000.

"This is living evidence that the family farm was never stronger than it is today," said Butz, standing in shirt-sleeves before the crowd in the Cow Palace at the county fairgrounds.

Special Invitation

He visited the city at the request of Peter Senn, a dairy and beef cattle farmer from Fond du Lac County who wrote Butz complaining that the secretary of agriculture stopped often at Des Moines, Iowa, but never in Wisconsin.

Rep. William Steiger, R-Wis., accompanied Butz and the Farm Bureau aided the effort to attract him.

Praising Bigler, Butz called him an example of a young man willing to work hard for a worthwhile goal. "Here's a family that went to work."

Lonny said he's a farmer because "here I'm my own boss." While working full-time at the Kohler plant he purchased a 40-acre tract and started farming. Gradually he enlarged the farm after two years quit the Kohler job to work full-time on the dairy farm. Later he purchased another 110 acres and now rents 20 acres for a total area of 170.

More than anything else Lonny started farming because he wanted to be independent. "As far as I'm concerned...I want to do what I like to do." He said now he works more hours but doesn't mind. "It's not a chore getting up in the morning."

Different Life

And Carol, his wife, said she, too, is satisfied with the lot of a farm wife although it's vastly different from her former life in town. "It's a hard life but a good one."

Lonny grinned. "She's learned how to drive a tractor, use a hammer and mix cement."

Earlier, during a question-and-answer session, Butz said America is 16 years behind in getting young men to take over the nation's farms. The big reason is because it simply isn't profitable enough, he said.

He told the farmers that they are among 5 per cent of the nation's people who produce a food supply enabling massive exports.

He also said food is cheaper in the United States than anywhere else in the world. American workers pay 16 per cent of their income for food while in England workers pay 23 per cent of their income and in Russia the cost is 45 per cent of income.

Farmers haven't gotten a fair raise in profits, he said to an applauding audience.

The shirt-sleeved secretary said city workers get a better pay rate. "The farm price of food items...has gone up a whopping 6 per cent in these 20 years," he said sarcastically.

Earlier in the day Butz answered questions of farm leaders expressing concern about the age of farmers and defending his decision not to raise the support price of milk.

He also toured the Tri-County Guernsey Parish Show being conducted on the fairgrounds and joined in a beef bratwurst and pork pattie dinner presented by the city Kiwanis Club.

Inmate Seeks Conjugal Visits

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A prison official allows conjugal visits between prisoners and their wives. It was the third lawsuit in a week submitted to Court, asking that they be allowed to have sexual relations inside the correctional facility.

Inmate Donald L. Nusberger and his wife, Judith, of Milwaukee asked Judge James E. Doyle to levy the damages against state corrections chief Sanger Powers and Wilbur Schmidt, secretary of health and social services.

The couple asked Doyle to order empty cells at Waupun to be remodeled for privacy and should be considered as a term of the contract.

He argued that Waupun officials have violated a constitutional right to privacy by denying conjugal visits. Nusberger's complaint quoted prison rules telling prisoners "You will be allowed to kiss your visitors before the visit, and at the end of the visit." The rules threaten revocation of visiting privileges for any "indiscreet conduct in the visiting room," Nusberger said.

The rules are designed to "dehumanize, degrade and destroy emotional ties" between prisoners and their wives, he said. He also argued it was unconstitutional for his wife to be punished by being denied sexual relations because of her husband's crimes. Conjugal visits are allowed in some of the country's prisons, including California's Soledad prison.

Powers said the Department of Health and Social Services would like to be given authority by the legislature to grant furloughs to well-behaved prisoners, but would frown on conjugal visiting inside prison walls.

About 75 per cent of Wisconsin's prisoners are unmarried, Powers said.

said. He advocates an immediate freeze on property taxes and on hiring of state employees.

Direct Aid

He also opposes direct aid to religious schools, supports preserving family farming while opposing corporate farming for tax write-off purposes and advocates a reduction in the authority of the Department of Natural Resources.

The DNR, he said, should be "dissolved or reorganized, so that it is more responsive to its citizens," to produce what he calls "a more sensible approach" to environmental problems.

He also advocates cuts in welfare and social service costs, guaranteeing job opportunity for "every able-bodied person" while caring for "those that cannot help themselves."

Can Identify

McFarren said he has spent most of his life as an employee, but for the past 13 years owned and operated his own businesses. He can identify with the interests of both labor and management, as well as urban and rural concerns, he said.

He is married and has three sons.

He will face Lorge in the September Republican primary as Lorge seeks his fifth full 4-year term in the Senate. The Democratic candidate, who is without opposition in the primary, is Michael P. Mack, 26, 116½ W. Wisconsin Ave., Appleton.

Kimberly Plans Group to Act On Annexation

KIMBERLY — A special meeting of the planning commission has been called by Village President Eugene Schellhout for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the municipal board rooms to act on a petition for annexation of approximately 43.25 acres of land from the Town of Buchanan.

The petition was signed by 17 property owners along Washington Street and Lamers Road and represents the majority of taxpayers within the area. The area borders the south village limits and includes acreage which could be zoned as business or light industrial.

Action by the planning commission will determine whether a special meeting of the village board will be held to act on its recommendations.

records for December, 1971, show that 429 persons qualified for old age assistance, including 254 only for the medical benefits and 175 for medical and income subsidy. Kaskey said some applied and were turned down but many more never applied and could have qualified.

"Very definitely, there are a lot of elderly people who are proud and will not accept assistance," he says. "And you find this more with the older people than the younger ones."

Kaskey said these elderly shouldn't consider this assistance a handout. "The program is designed to help people in need; it's not a giveaway program, especially for these old-timers. They're the ones who got this country going. They made us what we are."

Willadsen expressed a similar view. "There's nothing wrong with using services, including the income services available. We individuals should be more aware of the ramifications of age as a difficult time in life."

The county also provides a food stamp program which was started a few months ago in place of the commodities program. Depending on income, an elderly person — or any low-income family — can buy stamps for fewer dollars than their value is at grocery stores.

Charles Bessett, 84, who lives at Oneida Heights, receives less than $100 per month in Social Security income. And he can buy $32 worth of stamps for $20.

Kaskey says that if one's income is below $20 per month, he can get $32 worth of stamps for nothing. The program is just getting organized but it is better than the food commodities program where persons had to wait for a food wagon to stop by, he says.

Elderly, whether they rent or own their own home, can get rebates on so-called shelter expenses through the Homestead Tax Relief program. Willadsen says. Generally, persons with incomes under $5,000 qualify and should apply through the state Department of Revenue, he adds.

The rebate for rent paid or real estate tax paid is based on a formula which considers amount of taxes as well as income. Generally, the lower the income, the higher the tax rebate, he says, and for renter, they can get about 25 per cent of their rent rebated, if they have rent receipts.

Willadsen says there are numerous persons eligible for these rebates who aren't receiving them.

Kaskey and Willadsen say their departments' programs are doing a fairly adequate job but they see room for improvement in meeting the elderly's plight. For the time being, they and the elderly have little choice but to work within the present system.

Low-Cholesterol Diet Good One for Angina

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend being treated for angina pectoris was considered overweight. He was retired and not too active.

His doctor recommended that he go on a diet for one week only, drinking one quart of milk and one quart of fruit juice daily at two-hour intervals. Most of his fat was around the abdomen.

At the end of the week he has lost eight pounds and felt great. What is your opinion of the diet? Would you recommend it?

—M. F.

Well, the diet worked, didn't it? But no, I doubt it would be continued as long as necessary without sacrificing any needed types of nutrition.

Weight reduction diet benefit some (not necessarily all) angina sufferers, but if an angina patient is overweight, he should get rid of the excess poundage regardless of whether it makes him feel better right away. It will surely help in the long run.

The diet you describe is drastic, unbalanced and more reasonable diet. You can notonous in my opinion. Weight loss can be accomplished with a down on their calories and they more palatable diet which can say, "Yes, doctor" and go on.

In this case, maybe the doctor decided that if he laid down an absolutely rigid eating pattern, it might work. Well, evidently it didn't.

But I suspect that both he and I would have been better pleased if the patient would settle down into a diet that would keep excess weight off instead of whacking it off in crash fashion.

There's no special diet for angina other than one that will keep weight at a safe level or possibly a low cholesterol diet. But it's a bit late for that after the angina has become established.

Also do they contain hormones? I have breast cancer — tests.

That swelling is from too much fluid in your system. No, diuretics should not cause dryness of the skin. And no, they do not contain hormones.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How soon after a woman becomes pregnant is a pregnancy test accurate? A friend says her doctor told her after one week.

My physician says six weeks. Why would two G.P.s have such different answers? — Mrs. M.C. booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing."

have swelling if I don't take the pregnancy and there is a considerable difference in the sensitivity (and cost) of various tests.

If there is urgent need to know quickly, some tests will be positive within a week. Others may not be positive as late as two months.

For practical purposes, there are other signs and symptoms of pregnancy that suffice unless there is some special need to make certain immediately.

Reducing You can lose weight if you want to, Dr. Thosteson's "Lost Secrets of Reducing" tells you how—naturally. Because they know that pregnancy tests depend on changes in hormones that occur while the test suits your mind.

Win Stamp Collection By Naming Garments

BY CAPPY DICK
The boys or girls who win national grand prizes in today's easy puzzle contest will get a fine start in the hobby of stamp collecting because each will receive as his or her prize a packet of 1,000 colorful postage stamps from countries around the world.
Five of these big, exciting packets will be awarded, one to each of the five nearest, most original, correct contest entries received from the Cappy Dick area where this column is published.
Also, local qualifying prizes will be awarded. These will be

1. SRGRUOT
2. ACTO 4. RITSK
3. REEASWT 5. SRDES

Name the Garments
pocket-size "Roll-a-Sum" games consisting of four small wood blocks bearing numbers. It's fun to play the game of Roll-a-Sum, following the directions that come with the numbered cubes. Five Roll-a-Sum games will be awarded, one for each of the 5 nearest, most original, correct contest entries received locally in each city,

ONE HOUR ON TV

to cover only 10 COLUMNS of news in a newspaper!

If you were to watch the news on television for one whole hour, you might logically believe you'd heard it all. The fact is, you would have heard only that which can be covered in just a little over a page of your newspaper . . . ten columns.

In Bakersfield, Calif.,—population 70,000—a one-week analysis was made of the news provided residents by the local daily newspaper and the three television stations. Just 4.7 column inches of news in the paper took one full minute on TV: The "one hour" dinner time news program presented by two of the local TV stations was the equivalent of a little more than ONE newspaper page, while it took station number three an hour-and-a-half to broadcast the equivalent of only two newspaper pages.

It's easy to conclude that it would take television at least 16 fifteen-minute newscasts to equal the news content of just four newspaper pages . . . not to mention editorials, features, comics, and vital statistic-type information. (And, oh yes, there's no 'pause' for a commercial message . . . you read it when and as often as you like.)

Outdoor Cooking Is 'In'

Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

There's no doubt about it, outdoor cookery has become the thing to do. With good reason, too, because it's fun to have a barbecue or backyard picnic meal when the weather's either too hot for inside dining or just right for outdoor pleasure.

The custom used to be called dining "al fresco" or eating in the fresh air. Nowadays it's just a plain old barbecue, usually with the man of the family officiating at the grill when it comes to preparing the hamburgers, franks or brats just right. Milk, cooling drinks and beer are favorite beverages with some diners preferring the good, old hot cup of coffee.

For those looking for new ways to prepare outdoor meals, today's collection of recipes will supply the answers. Always remember, broiling and barbecuing may be different sides of the same cooking technique, they both are methods of cooking near the source of heat. Traditionally, the source of heat is above the meat for broiling while the heat source is below for barbecuing. Yet, any foods can come indoors when weather chills with the planned barbecue being neatly turned into a broil. It won't spoil the party a bit.

Another good idea: Use one of the clam bake steamers for a magnificent one pot supper. Actually, any two-part steamer or large, covered pot with cover and inside rack makes a fine corn pot for an outdoors feast. Place it on top of the outdoor grill — gas, electric or wood burning. Preheating the water for the pot on the kitchen range may speed things up.

When the pot begins producing steam on the outdoor stove or barbecue, introduce the ingredients for the one-pot supper at 10-minute intervals in this order:

Precooked sausage cut into individual portions along with medium-sized unpeeled onions; then unparfed (but scrubbed) carrots and frankfurters; then corn with silks removed but one or two layers of husks remaining. Steam for an additional 10 minutes after corn is added. Total cooking time should be 30 minutes. Test vegetables for doneness with a fork. Serve corn with Herb Butter.

Other recipes today feature seafood such as salmon steaks or other fish types done the "smoky way." Smoke cookery is a little slower than the usual cooking on a grill. It is achieved easily with a grill that has a hood. The heat and smoke circulate above and around the food, cooking and smoking evenly. The fire should be low.

Wet, hardwood chips, placed over the heated tiles on an electric or gas grill, or over glowing charcoal in a barbecue create the smoke and help maintain the proper temperature. A roomy, high-domed cover with a vent should be constructed for the barbecue without a hood.

Another new idea is to prepare a beef roast, right on the outdoor grill. Brown the meat first — boneless brisket rump or beef chuck — on the grill to give it the flavor. Then, wrap the meat with assorted vegetables and herbs in heavy duty aluminum foil. This allows the large piece of meat to mellow-cook slowly without charring or drying out.

Or prepare a stuffed steak in a unique but easy-to-do way. In the recipe, a finely seasoned mixture of onions, carrots, green pepper, mushrooms and pimiento-stuffed green olives literally dresses up the grilled or broiled steak with a bright color and succulent flavor.

Lamb chops, brushed with a spicy sauce, make elegant eating. Added information which will be welcome is the collection of barbecue recipes for vegetables of the canned variety, the frozen and even the frozen vegetable casseroles and rice dishes.

HERB BUTTER
One recipe that should be kept on hand for serving on cooked corn, baked potatoes or even cooked vegetables is this Herb Butter. It may be made ahead and reheated on the grill.

All it takes is the combination of 1 stick of butter or margarine that's melted, then blended with 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes, 1 pinch of thyme and 1 dash of seasoned salt. It's delicious as are all these Outdoor Specials.

SMOKY BEEF GRILL

3-3 1/2 pounds boneless brisket rump or beef chuck
3 tablespoons salad oil

1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 garlic clove, minced
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup sliced carrot
2 tablespoons catsup
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
1 bayleaf, crumbled
dash of pepper

Line grill with heavy duty aluminum foil — build fire about 30 minutes before cooking is to start.

Trim most of fat from meat and rub with salad oil. Place meat on grate directly over medium hot fire and brown, turning so all sides are browned.

While meat browns, assemble and combine remaining ingredients.

When meat is brown, remove from fire to a large sheet of heavy duty wrap. Pour vinegar mixture over meat. Bring two long ends of foil up over meat and double fold to make tight seal. Double fold remaining ends. Leave a little space in the package for juices, but have it airtight. Return to grill; place where heat is less intense. Cook slowly, about 2 hours, or until tested done. Recipe makes six to eight servings.

FISH STEAKS

6 salmon steaks (1 1/2 to 1-inch thick) or other thick fish steaks, fresh or frozen
1/4 cup orange juice
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons catsup
2 tablespoons cooking oil
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Thaw frozen steaks; dry. Place steaks in a single layer in a shallow baking dish.

Combine remaining ingredients. Pour marinade over fish and let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, reserving marinade for basting.

Place fish steaks on well-greased heavy-duty foil or on a well-greased hinged, wire grill and cook over moderately hot coals. Cook steaks for 5 to 8 minutes, baste, turn and cook for 7 to 10 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

OLIVE PEPPER RIBS

2 racks (about 2 1/4 pounds each) spareribs
Boiling salted water
1 tablespoon peppercorns
1/2 cup pimiento-stuffed olives
1 clove garlic, peeled and quartered
1/4 cup olive or salad oil
Simmer spareribs in water

Vegetable Barbecue

for about 1 hour or until tender; drain. Place spareribs on broiler pan with meaty side up. Place peppercorns in electric blender and whirl until cracked. Add all remaining ingredients to blender; blend until thick and fairly smooth. Spread mixture on meaty side of spareribs. Broil or grill about 6 inches from source of heat for 5 to 10 minutes or until browned. Serve spareribs garnished with parsley sprigs and sliced olives.

If blender not used, crush peppercorns with the side of a heavy knife and mix with the oil and ground or very finely chopped olives and garlic. Mix to form a paste.

GRILLED CANNED VEGETABLES

Remove label and lid from can; do not drain. Place on grill over hot coals. Heat until liquid bubbles and vegetable is hot. If desired, drain. Top with a pat of butter. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

VEGETABLES FROZEN IN BUTTER SAUCE

Remove frozen vegetables from pouch; place on large piece of heavy foil. Bring edges of foil together over center of vegetables. Fold with a double fold, leaving a little space for expansion of steam. Seal ends securely. Place on grill over hot coals for 30 to 45 minutes. Turn occasionally.

VEGETABLES FROZEN IN SPECIAL SAUCES

Prepare the same as vegetables frozen in butter sauce except cook over medium coals.

FROZEN RICE

FROZEN VEGETABLE CASSEROLES

Remove frozen casserole from carton. Remove clear cover from "ray art" cover loosely with foil. Place on grill over medium coals for 45 to 60 minutes or until center feels hot.

FROZEN CORN-ON-THE-COB

Remove frozen corn from bag; wrap each ear individually in heavy foil. Place on grill over hot coals for about 60 minutes. Turn occasionally. Open foil, season to taste.

FIESTA LAMB CHOPS

6 loin lamb chops, cut 1 1/2 inches thick
Pepper
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons salad oil
12 ounces chili sauce

Grilled Stuffed Steak

1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1/4 teaspoon cumin
1/4 teaspoon allspice
1/4 teaspoon oregano
Salt

Dust lamb chops with pepper, set aside. In heavy saucepan, cook garlic in salad oil until very lightly browned, stirring constantly. Add chili, sauce, chili powder, cumin, allspice and oregano. Heat through, stirring. Season to taste with salt. Grill chops 3 to 5 inches from the source of heat, 5 to 7 minutes on each side or until desired degree of doneness, brushing frequently with sauce. Heat remaining sauce and serve with chops.

GRILLED STUFFED STEAK

1/2 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper
1/4 cup coarsely grated carrots
1/4 cup finely chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped mushrooms
1/4 cup finely chopped

pimiento-stuffed olives
Black pepper
1/4 teaspoon ground thyme
1/4 teaspoon sage
1 1/2 inch thick boneless sirloin steak, about 2 pounds (with pocket cut for stuffing)
1 tablespoon salad oil
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire
1 small clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
Salt

Saute onions in butter until crisp tender; add green pepper, carrots and celery and continue cooking until green pepper and celery are crisp-tender.

Remove from heat, stir in mushrooms and olives. Add a dash of black pepper, thyme and sage. Spoon stuffing into pocket of steak, close pocket with large needle and cord or metal skewers. Combine oil, lemon juice, Worcestershire, garlic and parsley, brush on steak. Place steak on broiler rack or grill. Broil 4 to 5 inches from source of heat, for 14 to 15 minutes for medium doneness. Sprinkle with salt and brush with remaining oil mixture. Turn and broil 14 to 15 minutes longer or until steak is of desired doneness. Sprinkle with salt and place on platter. Remove cord. Garnish with parsley and additional olives.

OLIVE FRANKFURTERS

8 frankfurters
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
Dash Tabasco
8 frankfurter rolls, split in half and toasted

Split frankfurters lengthwise without cutting all the way through. Arrange frankfurters on grill, cut side down; grill 4 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine mayonnaise, olives, horseradish and Tabasco; mix well. Turn frankfurters, fill with olive mixture. Grill about 4 minutes. Serve on rolls.

THE ACES

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

One of the surprises of the recent Spring National Tournament in Cincinnati was that the National Men's Teams Championship attracted an entry of some three times that of the National Women's Teams. I wonder if the Women's Liberation movement had anything to do with this?

The Men's Teams was won by a couple of Aces. Jim Jacoby and Bobby Wolff, and their teammates, Jenn Simon of St. Louis, Jack Blair of Tulsa and Paul Swanson of Morgantown, W. Va. Today's game helped the team on the victory.

The final contract was optimistic but it is difficult to criticize any of the North-South actions.

West did well to lead clubs and declarer (Bobby Wolff) allowed him to hold the trick. The club continuation was won by dummy and the spade ten was passed to West's jack.

West continued with another club and declarer won the king. It was now time to make a move.

The heart finesse was taken and four hearts were run to create this position:

Opening lead: Jack of clubs.

West's overall left no doubt about the location of the spade king and diamond ace, and Wolff was able to take advantage of this.

When he cashed dummy's heart ten, discarding his losing club. West was in an embarrassing position. He could not unguard spades, and if blanked the diamond ace declarer could then make him lead into the A-Q of spades. Instead West discarded his good club nine.

Wolff countered by playing a spade to his ace and then giving West the spade queen. This forced West to lead from the diamond ace and gave declarer a well-earned nine tricks and his contract.

Doughnut Delight

Doughnuts enter a glamorous new life when split, toasted, then served with pineapple rings between the toasted halves. Topping with a scoop of ice cream and thickening the pineapple syrup for use as a sauce brings the transformation full circle. A hint of mint in the sauce earns even warmer praise for the hostess.

Area Women Named ALC National Delegates

Mrs. Clare Babcock, Northport; Mrs. Howell Lane, Berlin; Mrs. Raymond Poff, Oshkosh; Mrs. Harold Wolberg, Iola, and Betty John, Shiocton, will serve as delegates from the Appleton Conference area representing the Northern Wisconsin District at the triennial national convention of America Lutheran Church Women. The event will be July 24 through 27 in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Delegates will elect national officers and transact other business for the organization, an auxiliary of the 2.5 million member ALC.

Theme will be CHOOSE. It will be developed by the Rev. Erling Wold, Garden Grove, Calif.; Mrs. Edna Hong, Northfield, Minn.; the Rev. Tom Skinner, Brooklyn, N.Y., and Dr. T. A. Raedeke, St. Louis, Mo.

A special feature of the convention will be 22 interest-involvement groups that will give convention guests an opportunity to discuss pertinent issues in the context of a small group under specialized leadership. Each person will be able to participate in four different groups during the meeting. Also attending the event will be area women representing churches throughout the area.

Deep Set Posts

Gate posts should be larger and set deeper in the ground than fence posts.

How to Buy Sunglasses

Guidelines for buying sunglasses are given in an article for physicians in Medical Times by Dr. Peter Y. Evans, Georgetown University School of Medicine, Washington, D. C. They include:

Check the manufacturer's tag to see if the sunglasses meet or exceed the minimum standards of the F.D.A. and or the American National Standard Institute. Look carefully for scratches, bubbles or other flaws on the lenses. Neutral gray or smoke tints are usually best. Green is next-best. Yellow is good for hazy days and is often used by sportsmen. For non-prescription glasses, curved lenses are better than flat ones.

Pet Cemetery Startles Sister

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: — I just returned from visiting my sister in San Francisco. We went together to the cemetery to put flowers on the grave of our father. On the way home she said, and put a marble headstone on the grave. I'm ashamed to tell you my sister cried more over that racoon's grave than she did at Papa's.

Landers

The whole day had a night-marish quality. I saw graves for goldfish, parakeets, hamsters, and even a python. The grounds were beautifully kept and the landscaping and headstones must have cost a fortune. The pet cemetery was in much better condition than the one for humans. I find this hard to take and even harder to understand. Can you explain it? — Oddball in Lexington

Dear O.: The attachment some people feel for their pets defies explanation because it is not rational, it is emotional. People do what makes them feel good, and obviously a great many people feel good about giving a pet a fancy burial.

Incidentally, Lexington, Ky. has the most magnificent cemetery for horses in the world. When I visited there I was stunned by the beauty of the grounds and the lavishness of the monuments.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a typist-secretary in a large office. Two of the girls I work with have been going to the USO for several weeks and having a wonderful time. They asked if I'd like to go with them because there's a shortage of hostesses. Incidentally, Ann, I am 20 years old, and these girls are both 21.

Last night I told my parents I was going to a USO dance Friday. My mother hit the roof. She said no decent girl would be seen in such a place, that it's a pickup parlor for low-class servicemen.

I was shocked. These girls are very respectable and would not be interested in a pickup parlor. We moved here from a small town two years ago, and perhaps I am naive. Please tell me if the USO center is a decent place for a single girl. — Oak Park Miss

Dear Miss Oak Park: Only respectable, high-type, well-recommended girls are permitted to be hostesses at USO centers. All affairs are carefully chaperoned by a senior person in charge. No girl is admitted unless she is 18 years of age and has excellent references. Absolutely no liquor is served on the premises and if anyone brings liquor in he is invited to leave. Most USO dances are over at 11:15. You can tell your mother for me that she owes several hundred thousand servicemen apologies.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman who works in our office needs to know how she looks to others because it is painfully apparent that she doesn't have a clue. This dolly weighs at least 160 (she's about 5'2") and when I say she wears transparent bras and panties under her white and pastel silk jersey shifts, you can believe it. Even though she is old enough to be my mother I think I ought to tell her. How can I do it tactfully? — Disgusted

Dear Dis: There is no tactful way to tell a woman to put on opaque underwear. Just tell her straight out. But don't be surprised if nothing changes. Most people know what they look like.

WINE On the Table

By William Clifford

We stand in awe of fine restaurants and the men who face the super-human problems that beset them. So much can go wrong — and does.

In estimating the character and quality of a new restaurant, or a restaurant new to us, we've found that one of the best indicators is the proprietor's level of interest in wine.

Paul Kovi, Director of New York's famous Four Seasons, is a case in point. Joseph Berkmann, owner of London's Genevieve and allied restaurants, is another. Both are gifted men whose special knowledge of wine benefits their clientele in every listing, from a luncheon Pouilly-Fume to a 1929 Vosne-Romanee Les Beaumonts.

Quality Controlled

Berkmann remarks that "wine is the one item whose excellence can be personally controlled to a fine degree" by the restaurateur, adding candidly that "the quality of a steak depends on weekly fluctuations of a difficult market, the butchery, the chef who cuts it, the cook, and finally the waiter."

Whenever we taste wines we truly like, we not only go back to the restaurant for more, we also find out the name of the supplier. At the Genevieve Restaurants most of the German wines and many of the French, particularly the Burgundies, come from the house of Sichel.

This extraordinary firm, a sort of Rothschild of the wine business, is solidly established in four countries: France and Germany for production, England and the USA for sales. Its popular Blue Nun Liebfraumilch is probably available in more countries than belong to the UN.

That's only the tip of the iceberg. Beneath it lie a great variety of sound and interesting wines, well distributed, and bringing honor to the Sichel name in the upper echelons of the wine world.

You Can Shop Around For Psychiatric Help

BY SYLVIA PORTER
About 20 million persons in the U.S. will at some time develop a form of mental or emotional disorder requiring psychiatric care, according to the National Association for Mental Health.
That is almost one out of every 10 of us. On any given day of the year, nearly 500,000 of these are in state county and private mental hospitals.
Each year, the American public spends an estimated $4 billion on the treatment and prevention of mental illness. Our economy loses another $1 billion because of the decreased productivity of the mentally ill. Overall, this has become a $2 billion problem in the U.S. alone.
And the problem goes beyond this. For it also has been estimated that there are more than 1,000 patients for every available psychiatrist and that of all who need psychiatric care only 10 to 20 per cent ever get it.

Porter

How do you go about finding a psychiatrist?
First, if you believe you need such help, consult your primary personal physician. He knows what kind of person you are and which psychiatrist might be of most benefit to you. He probably also will know if any particular psychiatrist is regarded with any suspicion by any of his own medical colleagues.

Or you might turn to the local mental health association or the state mental health authority for the names of qualified psychiatrists in your neighborhood.

How much time and money is involved in treatment?
Your Condition
How much you can expect to pay and how long your treatment will last will depend on your condition and the treatment chosen for you.

The most typical charge for psychiatrist's time today, according to the American Psychiatric Association's Hospital and Community Psychiatry Service, is about $35 an hour.
The fee for your initial psychiatric consultation would depend on the time involved and might be slightly more than the hourly therapy charge.
The typical number of sessions in psychoanalysis ranges from 300 to 500 — although this depends on the patient and the progress. The span for you conditions while the patient is confined to the hospital. Many plans will pay reduced amounts for treatment as an out-patient.

Average Charges
These are typical and average charges as reported by national associations. Your own situation will depend, again, on your own circumstances, local number of group policies.

Added Benefit
And this is a benefit that is being written into an increasing number of group policies.

Is it possible to shop for these services?
Yes, it is possible to shop for psychiatric services. Start by checking the Department of Health to see what guidance you can get on your part of the costs.

The daily costs of psychiatric hospitalization are roughly comparable to hospitalization for any other reason.

In the past, insurers have particular problem. A health officer will be able to refer you to services available through conditions because of the high department or private agent total cost involved. However, he will be able to help you find the names of psychiatrists who pay 75 to 80 per cent of the cost of treatment for such Check with your local religious leaders and other community leaders to see what free services might be open to you.

Don't overlook such government programs as the Veterans Administration, which conducts a large-scale national program of medical care and rehabilitation services.

Look in the telephone directories to see how wide a range of low-cost psychiatric services might be available at great money-saving value to you.

Eagleton V.P. Choice Gives Democrats 'All-Prairie' Ticket

EARL WARREN — The revolutionary change now sweeping Democratic party was dramatically evident when Sen. McGovern passed up a ticket-balancing maneuver choosing his vice president choice for the nominating speech was black Mayor Ken Gibson of Newark—a high night: "McGovern had Shirley tests, are not dismayed at the flowering of old-pro anger that they truly believe that public humiliation of the traditionalists — a result of the party's big city politician from the East ern's appeal as a 'peoples' candidate." Certainly, the McGovernites were true to that the way they chose Tom Eagleton for vice president.

Fun Vehicles

Banned in Parks
SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Motorcycles, dune buggies and other land recreational vehicles have been banned from all but improved roads in New Mexico State Parks.
The State Park and Recreation Commission adopted the regulation Tuesday. It also requires the vehicles to be "properly muffled" and prohibits their use at night.
State parks Director Richard Mutz said there have been several serious accidents involving recreational vehicles, in addition to incidents of annoyed park visitors.

WUO Nursing School Wins Federal Grants

OSHKOSH — Two federal grants totaling $211,747 have been awarded the School of Nursing of the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh for the 1972-73 academic year. Dean Helen E. Dorsch said today.
The grants, awarded under the Nurse Training Act of 1971, were prompted by the rapid growth of the School of Nursing. The School of Nursing dean said that more than 1,000 nursing majors, both preprofessional and professional students, are anticipated for the fall session.

This includes 289 incoming freshmen who already have registered for the fall term.

then permitted minor supporters to veto Mayor Kevin White of Boston, his first choice among the available. The fascinating story of the selection of personable Sen. Eagleton of Missouri as McGovern's long-ago decision not to take a partner on his ticket.

Parents and Children

By Arnold Arnold

Summer Outings With Young Children

Your family will probably spend summer weekends in parks, playgrounds, and public recreation areas. You may go for a holiday trip, camping in a national park or forest.

At the very least, you'll be taking a drive to a beach or swimming pool, or to the country for a day, now and then. In any event, the following rules will assure that you and your children will have an enjoyable time. They'll be safe and happy. They'll have opportunities for fun and play. And you'll have a chance for getting sun and rest.

Take along appropriate toys, soft, cuddly dolls and animals for long car trips with young children, digging tools for beach or playgrounds, ball and sports equipment for the beach or country picnics, and a few books for the kids to look at or read if they are old enough. Encourage your child to pack his own playthings. Give him his own small bag. Then let him fill it with his favorite toys — and no more.

Take along a change of clothing for your children. They may need it. The weather may get cold or they may get drenched. Include a well-stocked first aid kit in your baggage. Don't forget calamine ointment for poison ivy, band-aids, and anti-septic salve for minor cuts or burns. Your doctor or physician can advise you for the best assortment. Don't forget to take a good supply of disposable "wash-and-dry" wash cloths. Keep a first-aid book on your car's glove compartment or baggage. Be familiar with poisonous plants and mushrooms. Don't expose your child to direct sunlight for long.

Ask your child frequently whether he needs to go to sleep or to the bathroom. Take him to the toilet. Many public facilities are neglected and filthy. Make sure that your child stays clean and healthy. When camping in an area that has no public facilities, teach your child to dig a hole before he moves his bowels, and to cover it well with dirt afterwards. It is horrifying how many young people are unaware of this essential first rule of public sanitation.

Keep a shovel, a box of matches in a water-proof container, toilet paper, emergency food (chocolate bars, dry crackers, cans of soup), a stereo stove, a thermos flask of drinking water, blanket, pillow and a few towels, in the back of your car. You never know what might happen. You could get stuck in the middle of nowhere.

Don't wear the kids out when you go sight seeing. Give them time to rest. If there are some things you want to see especially, after your child has had enough, let the other adult in your family look after them in a cool, shady place, while you satisfy your interest. That's why children have two parents.

THE WORD

IS

The flavor stays big, and fresh, and French...

Henri's French Dressing is cold-blended...never cooked!

Salad greens taste fresh, lively, and natural because you never cook 'em. None of the goodness, not a wisp of flavor goes up in steam.

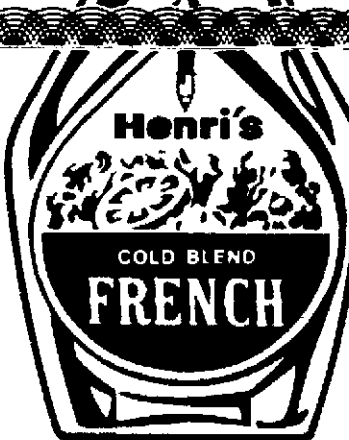

Henri's French Dressing adds a fresh, lively, natural taste to salads because it's cold-blended, never cooked. The big fresh taste of the ripe red tomatoes, piquant spices, and sparkling vinegar never goes up in steam.

Image-Makers Construct Candidates

The Post-Crescent C 10
Wednesday, July 19, 1972

"The Candidate," Redford

Sen William Proxmire had cosmetic surgery and a hair transplant. Hubert Humphrey dyed his hair. Sen George McGovern acquired a spiffy new wardrobe and President Richard Nixon's makeup man learned how to cope with his jowls and five o'clock shadow.

It's all part of that popular American game — the making and selling of candidates.

This packaging of a personality is illustrated in a widely-acclaimed new Warner Bros. film, "The Candidate," starring Robert Redford as a young attorney who successfully runs for the United States Senate — and loses a few ideals along the way.

Image Building
As part of the image-building candidate Redford, who is given to wearing cords, work shirts and a shock of reddish-blond hair that spills into his eyes is told that he will have to "ax those sideburns and get a haircut." To change his sartorial image, plaid jackets are replaced by navy suits, white shirts with long pointed collars and sincere maroon ties.

What else are these political hopefuls opting for to enhance their image appeal? Pattern on pattern on pattern seems to be the unanimous choice for all the candidates on the banquet circuit these days. Red ties and finely-striped shirts abound. Grey flannel is popular for motorcades and single-breasted linen-look suits are as close to sporty as a candidate may be allowed to get to do some politicking on the beach.

The look might be termed All-American Classic. The idea is to appear establishment and faintly Ivy League, not too mod or sharp. A regional look is definitely to be avoided, except for small-town-street-corner appearances out of TV camera range. Cowboy hats and Indian bonnets are a definite no-no. Above all, each candidate strives to look middle-of-the-road and as much like the other candidates as possible.

In this film, the candidate's wardrobe becomes part of a family argument. He checks with his manager as to whether he should button his suit jacket on camera. A figured tie is replaced by another just before a TV debate. Again, the point is made: Style, not content, is the important thing to the image-makers.

Successful and Secure
Obviously, "The Candidate," is not a film about fashion trends but it is very much concerned with men's fashions. Fashion is defined as the prevailing style during a particular time.

And the politician's in the film—Robert Redford, Melvyn Douglas (as the ex-governor and Redford's father) and Don Porter (as Redford's political opponent)—are extremely well-dressed. They are not trend-setters but their wardrobes reflect secure and successful men. They are worthy of study by anyone interested in both politics and the part clothes play in putting across the desired image.

Off screen, Robert Redford buys his clothes at Sears Army-Navy, Roffe, Harley Davidson, Head Sportswear, on Indian reservations (he lives in Utah) and at Melandri in New York. Some he designs. Others he has made.

Commenting on the fashion scene today, he says, "They're trying too hard."

The film was directed by Michael Ritchie, written by Jeremy Lerner and produced by Walter Coblenz. Patricia Norris was the costume designer.

House, Garden Walk in Door County Scheduled

A tour in the Door County Peninsula House and Garden Walk is planned for July 25 and is being sponsored by the Appleton Y Garden Club.

Included on the tour is a two-level ranch home in Sturgeon Bay, a three-level year-round traditional Williamsburg style home north of Sturgeon Bay, an English country house built in 1924 in Fish Creek, a year-round home overlooking Eagle Harbor and the village of Ephraim, an Ephraim condominium with long established decor and lifestyle of the area, and a "Dream Acre" which is an all-electric home in Sister Bay with natural fieldstone fireplace and wood paneling throughout.

Proceeds will be used for the Women's Auxiliary's pledge to the Door County Memorial Hospital.

The tour will leave from the Appleton Y at 7:30 a.m. and return at 6 p.m. Included in the fee will be tickets for the House and Garden Walk, round-trip fare on the chartered air conditioned bus, buffet lunch at DuNord Hotel at Sister Bay, trip insurance and tour escort. Reservations may be made by contacting the Adult Office of the YMCA. Tickets are limited.

Henry B. Maes' Wed 50 Years

KAUKAUNA — Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Maes, 708 Grignon St., marked their 50th wedding anniversary recently with a Mass of thanksgiving at Holy Cross Catholic Church and a dinner and reception at the Darboy Club. The couple was married June 20, 1922 at St. Nicholas Catholic Church, Freedom.

Present for the event were attendants, Mrs. Austin Wheaton, Larsen, and Joseph Schlude, Kaukauna.

Mr. Maes was employed by Thimany Pulp and Paper Co., before retirement.

The couple has eight children: Mrs. Victor Pieters and Henry W., both of Kaukauna; Mrs. Norman Reybrock, Little Chute; Mrs. Matt Hopfensperger, Appleton; Mrs. James Vanden Heuvel, Kimberly; Paul, El Paso, Tex.; John, Tacoma, Wash.; and Dan, Raleigh, N.C. There are 43 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Wood for All

Future wood resource needs of the nation will require intensive forestry management for all uses.

At Right is the man in the gray flannel suit. Image-making of political hopefuls has revamped outer-wear, giving the desired look to the candidate. Robert Redford characterizes this image in the film "The Candidate."

John's thinks if you can't stand the heat you should get out of the kitchen.

Here's how to get out of slaving over a hot stove this summer. Just a few minutes oven time is all it takes to serve up a John's Frozen pizza—the good round meal.

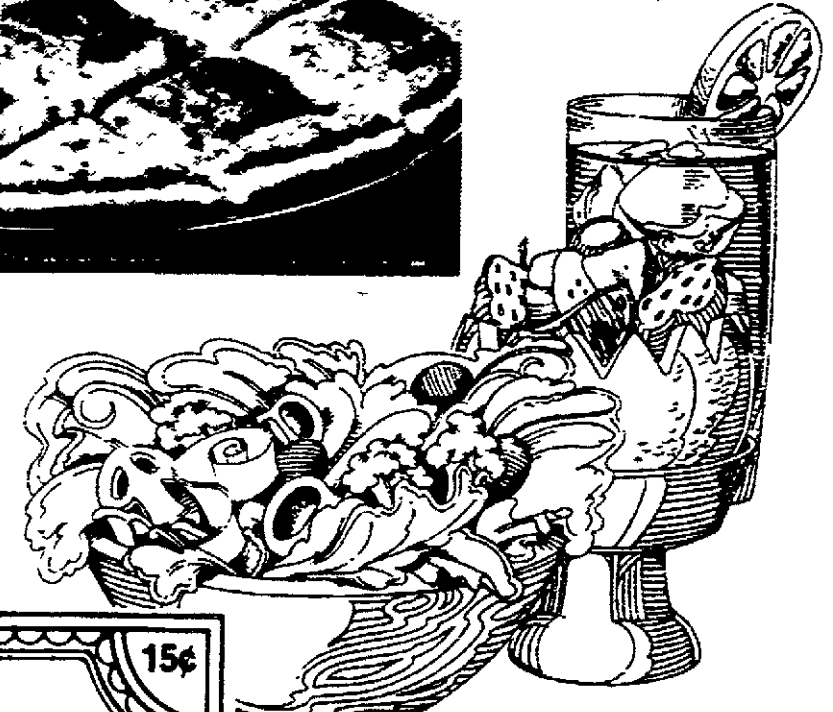

It's made with lots of good nourishing things you normally make a meal of: like good spring wheat crust topped with red ripe tomato sauce, hot bubbly whole milk cheese, plus sausage, hamburger or pepperoni.

So all you need add is this crisp garden salad, refreshing summer drink and festive dessert to make a meal you can be proud of. And all without losing your cool.

ORANGE CUPS ELEGANTE
3 large oranges
1 banana, sliced
1 pint whole strawberries
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup green grapes
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup honey
1 tsp. vinegar
1 tsp. cinnamon
Toasted coconut

Cut oranges in half. Remove fruit sections. Cut membranes and remove. Scallop edges of orange shells; refrigerate. Combine orange sections, banana, strawberries and green grapes; chill. Heat water, honey, vinegar and cinnamon and simmer 10 minutes or until thick. Chill. Spoon fruit into orange shells, top with honey sauce. Sprinkle with coconut. Makes 6 servings.

SOMETHIN' SPECIAL SALAD
2 qts. mixed greens; lettuce, curly endive, Bibb lettuce, romaine, torn into bite-sized pieces
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup cherry tomatoes, cut in half
1/2 cup cauliflower
1/2 cup ripe olives
1/2 cup salad oil
1/2 cup tarragon vinegar
1 tsp. celery seed
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
Wash greens and refrigerate. Prepare mushrooms, tomatoes, cauliflower and olives; chill. Combine remaining ingredients; blend well. Refrigerate for 1/2 hour or until serving time. Combine greens, vegetables and salad dressing and toss. Makes 6 servings.

Abortion Is Sensitive Issue for Politicians

BY JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

Just one year ago, advocates of legalized abortion were riding a favorable current of state legislation and court decisions that seemed to point to an irresistible trend.

Alaska, Hawaii, Washington and New York had greatly liberalized their laws, virtually providing abortion on request. Thirteen other states and the District of Columbia allowed abortions under certain circumstances. More than 30 other states were considering new abortion legislation.

Court rulings in Illinois, California and elsewhere expanded access to abortion. Many in the movement to legalize abortion felt confident it was an idea whose time had come.

But today, a full-fledged counteroffensive is gathering force in an election year that has politicians stepping warily on an emotional and politically sensitive issue.

Counter Effort Made

Right to Life committees have formed in virtually every state, conducting mail campaigns, educational programs, protests, and lobbying drives in legislatures. So successful were their efforts that only one state, Florida, has enacted abortion changes this year, and a liberal law in New York was retained only by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's veto of the repeal act.

The Democratic National Convention's platform committee defeated a proposal for a legalized abortion plank. "We can't be known as the abortion party," one committee member commented.

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, has called abortion reform a "no win issue" and contends it should be left up to the states.

Sanctity of Life

President Nixon said publicly he couldn't square "abortion on demand" with my personal belief in the sanctity of human life, including the life of the yet unborn."

Earlier in the year, he expressed opposition to legalized abortion in a letter to Terence Cardinal Cook of New York, also an opponent. The letter became public in the midst of New York's legislative debate on repeal and caused an uproar.

Legislators said they were under heavy pressure from Right to Life groups to vote for repeal of New York's law, which went into effect two years ago this month. Lawmakers were telephoned at their homes, petitions were presented to their offices, and demonstrators gathered in Senate chambers pleading for a return to the old law which allowed abortions only when necessary to save the life of the mother.

Revolt Shocking

The strength of the opposition in New York came as a surprise to many reformers.

"We were really caught off guard. Back in 1970 we thought the abortion issue in New York was secure and that progress throughout the country would be automatic," said Linda Zimmerman, national coordinator for the Woman's National Abortion Action Coalition (WONAAC). "It came as a shock. I think abortion reform will be a long and difficult campaign, with some defeats ahead I'm sure."

In addition to New York, many other state legislatures have felt the pressures of organized opposition.

This past year, moves for liberalization were defeated in Georgia, Indiana, Rhode Island, Colorado, Delaware, Maine, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

In states such as California, Hawaii, and Colorado, with already liberalized laws, opponents of abortion have been working for a return to statutes that permitted abortions only to save the life of the mother.

In Connecticut, a federal court ruled unconstitutional the 112-year-old law which prohibited abortions except to save the life of the mother. But Gov. Thomas Meskill, a Catholic in a heavily Catholic state, called a special assembly and an even stricter antiabortion law was passed, with increased penalties.

In Massachusetts, abortion reform has been proposed almost annually for the past four years. Again in 1972, it was overwhelmingly defeated. Now a constitutional amendment has been proposed to guarantee the rights of the unborn. The effect would be to prohibit all abortions.

The National Committee for the Right to Life now has 250 affiliates throughout the nation, compared with about 100 two years ago. Groups such as Voice for the Unborn, Citizens Concerned for Life, and Mobilization for the Unborn are lobbying and demonstrating effectively to stem further changes.

Life-Death Issue

"This is a life-and-death issue and when people understand that, they want to get committed to the fight. We're exploding with people wanting to get involved," says Michael Taylor, executive secretary of the National Committee.

In Ohio, where attempts at liberalization died in a legislative committee, Rights to Life groups claim about 40,000 supporters.

"We have gained strength now that attention has been called to the issue repeatedly over the last four or five years," says Kathy Foley, a Right to Life member from Columbus.

The Roman Catholic Church is the most powerful opponent of legalized abortion, and membership in the Right to Life groups tends to be heavily Catholic.

"There's no question where the opposition really comes from," says John A. Galbraith, an Ohio state representative who sponsored three futile efforts to liberalize Ohio's abortion law. "If it weren't for the Catholic Church, the law would have been changed years ago."

The core of the abortion debate is the right of the unborn child vs. the right of the woman to control her body, an issue that has gained momentum from the feminist movement.

"It is a question of human life. No one has the right to kill an innocent human being," says Msgr. Hugh Curran, director of the Family Life Bureau of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York. "The right to life of the unborn has priority over the right of the woman to convenience."

"Women must have the right to decide whether or not to bear a child. There are no 100 per cent safe and effective methods of birth control as yet. Abortion is a necessary backup and every woman's right," says Linda Zimmerman of WONAAC.

Emotional Issue

While both sides have tried to keep arguments on legal and constitutional grounds, the debate has often grown intensely emotional and lurid.

In New York, one lawmaker supporting repeal exhibited a 16-week-old fetus in a jar to a stunned assembly. Opponents displayed coat hangers and other makeshift instruments to dramatize crude methods resorted to before legal abortions became available.

Gov. Meskill said during the Connecticut debate, "I don't think the issue is whether murder is performed by a skilled surgeon or whether it is performed by an old lady with a hatpin in a dirty alley."

Both sides use polls and statistics to substantiate their arguments.

The Commission on Population Growth and the American Future, headed by John D.

Rockefeller III, reported that one-half the Americans surveyed believe that abortion should be a decision between the mother and her physician, and that only six per cent were totally opposed to all abortions.

Another poll recently taken for Planned Parenthood indicated that 57 per cent, as opposed to 20 per cent six years ago, believed that "the decision to have an abortion should be made solely between a woman and her physician." Among Catholics surveyed, 54 per cent were said to concur.

Right to Life has its own polls, one indicating that 80 per cent of Americans are opposed to abortion on demand.

Michael Taylor says the bulk of the Right to Life effort these last two years has been "mainly defensive — to keep liberal laws from being passed. No one has high hopes of easy success, but we intend to keep after all the states next year."

While reform through the legislature seems temporarily stymied, pro-abortion forces look to voters and the courts for the future.

In Michigan and North Dakota, proposals for abortion on demand will be put to the electorate in referendums this November. Often, supporters of liberalized laws are looking to the courts. More than 70 cases were decided in the past 2½ years, and the majority widened access to abortion. State abortion laws were invalidated on various grounds: that they violated a woman's right to privacy, that the state could not interfere with her right to terminate a pregnancy, and others.

Opponents of legal abortion also are fighting in the courts. A law professor at Fordham University, Robert M. Byrn, challenged the New York

State law on the grounds that it violates the 14th Amendment, which holds that no state shall "deprive any person of life . . . without due process of law." Byrn claimed that the unborn child is a "person."

The State Court of Appeals, however, ruled that the extent to which a fetus should be protected is a value judgment that should rest not on the courts, but in the legislature. Byrn has said he will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, already to rule next year in cases from Texas and Georgia.

The Texas case involves an appeal from a lower court ruling that the state's statute, permitting abortion only to save the life of the mother, was unconstitutional because of "vagueness" and because it violated a woman's right to privacy.

The Georgia law allows abortion to preserve the life and health of the mother, in case of rape or incest, or of fetal deformity. It was held invalid on grounds that the law unduly limited the reasons for an abortion and also restricted the doctor's right to practice medicine.

"We hope that the Supreme Court will deal frankly with these cases and determine whether a woman has a fundamental right to abortion," says Nancy Stearns, an attorney with the Center for Constitutional Rights.

Push Continues for Labeling of Cosmetics

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE
WASHINGTON — The cosmetics industry is following up an earlier campaign for "truth" in action taken earlier this year announced that she would report the results in the second week of August.

To increase the possibilities of Mrs. Knauer, leaders of the industry joined together last year to propose a voluntary system of labeling ingredients and registering such information with the government.

The FDA proposals were in response to this move.

Meanwhile, several manufacturers have begun to list ingredients. They include Avon Products and AR-EX Pro, several retail firms have begun to demand content information on products they sell. These firms include Osco Drugs and Giant Food Stores.

Few Requirements

Many cosmetics products disclose one or two of their major ingredients, but few list all of them. Some also warn of the possibility of irritations and other reactions, but there are few requirements for such information.

Many consumers assume that cosmetics must be tested and proved safe for human use before they can be sold. But such is not the case. Efforts to get a law to that effect have been unsuccessful largely because of the political power of the industry which opposes the idea.

The Administration's willingness to push a voluntary system is a clue to the industry's power to resist mandatory requirements.

Trade Sets

Most consumer advocates feel that voluntary regulations will not work. They point out that previous administrations also applied their persuasive skills with extremely few results. The fact is that the contents of beauty aids are often considered to be trade secrets.

Numerous members of Congress have tried to get a law passed to require cosmetic and full disclosure of ingredients. In fact, such authority was added to the Product Safety Act approved by the Senate last month. The bill presently awaits action in the House.

The chances of getting such a law passed may depend somewhat on the type of response received by Mrs. Knauer from manufacturers. Meanwhile, consumers can help the cause and themselves by buying products that list their contents.

Allergic Reactions

She called particular attention to the problem of allergic reactions, which have been increasing in recent years. She said "many consumers want to know the ingredients of cosmetic products so they can avoid allergic or sensitizing reactions."

Largely due to earlier efforts

Today in History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 19, the 201st day of 1972. There are 165 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1870, the Franco-Prussian War began.

On this date:

- In 1821, England's King George IV was crowned.
- In 1918, during World War I, German armies began to retreat across the Marne River after being defeated in their last great offensive in France.

Chess Takes on Political Air

CHICAGO (AP) — President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern are the kings. Henry A. Kissinger and Eugene McCarthy the queens and Hubert H. Humphrey wears the bishop's robes in the newest gimmick of the political year — Chess '72.

Marc Howard of Detroit said the idea came to him as he slept last November.

The political lineup behind the Nixon and McGovern kings includes Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy on McGovern's side and President Spiro T. Agnew and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell on President Nixon's.

Five years ago: Eighty-two persons were killed when a Piedmont Airlines plane and a small plane collided above Hendersonville, N.C.

One year ago: A weeklong strike against the Bell Telephone Co. came to an end with an agreement on a new contract with the Communications Workers of America.

Today's birthdays: Sen. George McGovern is 50. Actor Pat Hingle is 48.

Thought for today: Political elections are a good deal like marriage — there's no accounting for anyone's taste—American humorist Will Rogers.

Brandenburg Fans 17 in Marion Win

MARION — Kent Branden-burg struck out 17 in hurling Marion to a 8-4 American Legion win over Manawa Tues-day.

Brandenburg also went 3-for-4 at the plate and in the 8th inning had to strikeout four batters before retiring the side.

Greg Hinz ripped a pair of triples including one with the bases loaded. John Krueger posted two hits for Marion. Randy Hoffman had two of Manawa's six hits.

Marion, now 6-4, plays Wau-paca Thursday.

The Soviet-U.S. Grain Agreement

It has been suggested that the recent $750 million grain sale by the United States to the Soviet Union was the outcome of the summit meeting in Moscow. It could be somewhat the other way around. The expanding desire in both countries for more economic transactions of benefit to both countries may have warmed the cold war atmosphere enough so that the summit could be held.

Ten years ago such a sale probably would have meant outcries of soft on communism, they want to bury us and reminders that an army travels on its stomach. We started grain sales in 1963 and the Russians bought $150 million worth last year when the evidence of several bad weather years was acknowledged by Moscow. But we never have sold to anyone such a large amount of wheat, corn and feed grains. And we have never before sold to the Soviet Union on credit.

At the summit meeting when the disarmament agreement was announced, it was explained that trade pacts had to be negotiated further. Specifically the Russians wanted our grain for under 3 per cent interest, or at least that was the first demand. There is a possibility as well that the American bargainers wanted more Russian pressure put upon Hanoi for settlement of the war in Indochina before the American November elections, or at least signs that the Russians were doing all they could. As the talks have resumed in Paris, it may be that there will be more concrete evidence of such pressure in the next few weeks.

Cynics claim that ideology always follows the economy and people in general couch their wants in idealistic terms when they really are only after a financial advantage. To a great extent history bears out the theory. But this is all the more reason why trade relations between two social systems should be worked out and be beneficial to both. The success of such trade should mean less chance of emotionally based conflicts because of the differences in ideas about government.

Up to a point, this should be possible. The line between the encouragement of good relations between different social systems and the subsidizing of tyrannical regimes destructive of the human spirit gets to be a fine one. It wasn't very long ago that the United States was blamed for shipping scrap iron to a militant Japan and helping that nation extend its rule by force in Asia. The Soviet government probably has paid more attention to helping societies in its own socialist mold but that isn't necessarily commendable either.

But in the nuclear age improved relations between the United States and the Soviet Union must be considered a plus. If the Russian need for grain and other goods will help in ending the carnage in Southeast Asia — even to satisfy a United States President seeking re-election — so much the better.

Job Changes Can be Hazardous

A recent study sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health warns "it would seem that the stressful effects of American geographical mobility have been underestimated. Moving often places inordinate demands on the individual to adapt and raises continued challenges to his identity.... A substantial number of persons experience incapacitating suffering."

Moving has been a custom experienced by probably a higher percentage of Americans than people of any other country. In the first place, the great majority of our ancestors were immigrants. Many were always moving on, to new lands, fresh frontiers, re-born dreams. Such moving to get away from a neighbor whose chimney smoke could be seen was sort of an American tradition. But the study shows that modern nomads are having trouble and this is especially true of the wives whose families move so that the husband can improve his employment position.

Obviously the man in a new position which he sought and was awarded is presumably happily challenged. But his wife may not have wanted to leave her old neighborhood, her friends, the contacts and volunteer work she may have enjoyed. She must start again but without the enthusiasm for something new that encourages her husband because after all it isn't her move at all.

Basically this isn't so much a mobility problem as it is one of the concept of the family which thoughtful women's lib types are probing. Must the husband always be the breadwinner so that his opportunities, wants and desires must be paramount? A lot of people no longer think so which alone can account for some of the doubts and resentments among the second place wives. The study showed that those most likely to get through moves without emotional problems or who actually enjoy the whole process were college-educated women with a wide range of interests and those over 50 who often were eager for a change.

Masculine critics of the new equality point to the covered wagon days, the enthusiasm with which women followed their men over parched deserts, vast wildernesses, the threats of hunger, Indian attacks, cannibalism and disease. But there was a difference in that such moves were really family affairs, husbands didn't go off to a new job leaving the wife to pick up the pieces with a dissatisfied family. Such wives, we suspect, were not really as reliant upon their husbands as those who suffer trauma in moves today.

There should be more research in this area. While the problems of making a living are recognized as common causes of stress, emotional upsets resulting from moving more likely have their base in a deeper unrest. Moving merely has brought out the fault and the upset is a symptom of something wrong in the entire husband and wife relationship.

Tighter Regulations for Bicycles

Most automobile drivers tighten up when approaching a youngster on a bicycle. The carelessness of youth, coupled with miscalculations, can lead to hairy experiences or serious accidents.

But sometimes the bicycle as well as its rider or the speeding motorist is to blame for trouble. This fall the Food and Drug Administration will put out mandatory safety standards for bicycles sold in the United States.

The FDA gets into the matter because of its children's hazard division which can also cite dangerous toys. The rising number of bicycle accidents and the skyrocketing number of new riders have brought about the proposal. The standards are likely to be stiff.

Ten years ago there were 3.7 million bikes sold in this country. This year it is estimated there will be 11 million sold due to the increase in the population but also the campaign against polluting devices like the motorcar, traffic problems in the cities and the emphasis upon such exercise as bicycling produces. But last year there also were 40,000 bike traffic injuries as compared to 27,000 ten years ago. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates the actual number of injuries at over the million mark annually.

Bike riders probably are to blame for the accidents just as car operators are the major contributors to the carnage on the highways. But faulty construction, poor designs and inadequate materials also can hurt. These are the factors that the FDA hopes to eradicate. Such handicaps as slippery pedals, brakes that are too tight, wheels that make the vehicle unwieldy, or hand brakes that are tough for children to operate also are targets.

Almost all large communities now have required instruction for children in safe bike riding and licenses so that violators can be tabbed as well as stolen bikes easily recovered. If the product is basically sound and required to be, the chances of accidents also should be reduced.

Civil War Soldiers Organize

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for July 20, 1872.

Several meetings have been held in this city by soldiers in the late Civil War.

They have a determination to start a settlement under the Soldiers Homestead Act of June 8th, 1872, somewhere on the line of the Wisconsin Central Railway. The Act is not satisfactory in some of its provisions, but it is believed the "blind" features will be amended next winter.

An Association is being formed of soldiers who served 90 days or upwards and who are entitled to a Homestead Entry of a quarter of a section of land. The committee consists of Messrs. Sam Ryan Jr., Louis West, Robert Sheriff, William Green, T.B. Hill, A.B. Randall, and George Knowles.

Names of those interested in joining the Association may leave their names with any of the committee. All soldiers in the County are invited to attend a meeting at Harriman's office, Thursday, Aug. 1st, at 7.30 p.m. sharp.

Democratic Convention Seen As an 'Ideological Joyride'

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

COMING HOME — Pursuant to Senator McGovern's instructions. It is a very good feeling, coming home. The mood in Miami, at the McGovern convention, was elated. These are the happy people, and it is obvious why. Jimmy the Greek, who is the actual Delphos in America, was brought down and interviewed on network teevee, and he said that he had put the odds against McGovern's nomination, as recently as last December, at 50-1.

Now McGovern is nominated, and Jimmy the Greek shifts gears and puts the odds against McGovern's election at 4-1. Jimmy has traveled a long distance, and the McGovernites at Miami, a harmonic arrangement of kids, intellectuals, and ethnics, are as confident as the early Christians. Chiasm is in the air, and He is George McGovern, whose incarnation will be effected by the voters in November. Then, to quote from the peroration in McGovern's acceptance speech, America will have "come home."

I do not know whether George McGovern will be elected president. I do know so served for playground activities.

The Appleton High School gymnasium was being transformed into a giant banquet hall for the American Legion Department convention in Appleton. Ed Bass was construction chairman; Jerry Harder supply chairman; Ed Manning banquet chairman, and Lewis Jury, high school custodian, was assisting.

10 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, July 18, 1962.

A million-dollar gift from Casper Youngchild, retired paper manufacturer living in Appleton, was to make a new Science building possible for Lawrence College. The new building, to be completed by the next September, was to be named Casper E. Youngchild Hall of Science, and become a companion building to the Isaac Stephenson Hall of Science, given principally by a Marinette lumberman in 1899.

Red Cross swimming certificates went to Beverly Andrews, Jeff Utke, and Bonnie Conradt at the Larry's Country Club pool, near Hortonville. Instructors were Mrs. Perry Pollard, Appleton, and Mrs. Jack Jayne, Menasha. Mrs. Nick Engler, Red Cross volunteer from Appleton, made the certificate presentations.

Members of the Greenville Athletic and Civic Club who spoke at the annual banquet the previous night were Louis Rudloff, president; Jerome Peters, secretary, and Chuck Schroeder, baseball manager.

that the McGovern convention was an ideological joyride. And no matter what happens in November — even if Richard Nixon wins again, this time by a landslide — the moment of rapture will not turn to bitterness. George McGovern, in an incautious public flirtation with megalomania, spoke of his nomination as a "sweet harvest."

Memory Will Linger
Thus it will remain in the memory, win or lose. However, the legions intend to win. They hope to reify George McGovern's dream. They are the political alchemists, who will transform hatred into love, poverty into plenty, the Soviet Union into Switzerland. One finds oneself hoping, less that Nixon will win because it is important for the safety of the republic that he should do so, than that he should win in order to spare the young McGovernites a direct experience with power.

When John Lindsay made his victory speech, back in 1965, he told his followers that he would transform New York into the empire city, and he might as well have shot them all with coule-jolt of morphine, so transported were they by the vision of it all. Yesterday, seven years later, the cameras did not trouble to focus on John Lindsay, sitting there unnoticed in the shadows that closed down at that tag-end of his boulevard of broken dreams. Eugene McCarthy, and bard of spiritual restoration only four years ago, came into Miami unnoticed except by those whose practice it is to notice the unnoticed. So it will be, not necessarily for McGovern himself, but for McGovern's dreams, surely; ineluctably. It is necessarily so for anyone who seeks to do what only God can do.

Speaking of which, the rhetoric of the last hours of the convention was exalted beyond even conventional idealism. Senator Kennedy said he had been "humbled" by the invitation to run for vice president. If that is true, surely it will prove to be the most significant achievement of his McGovern convention. Later, Senator Kennedy addressed the convention and said that it had returned to the ideal of "John Kennedy, who said ask not what the country can do for you, but what you can do for your country." A breathtaking announcement, uttered before a convention that sometimes seemed to be saying that the most you can do for your country is evade the draft, smoke pot, abort your babies, have a homosexual affair, and receive in return for nothing at all, a thousand dollars a year from your fellow citizens.

Senator Eagleton emerged as testimony to Senator McGovern's genius for discovering what nobody else had discovered, and he quickly, and amusingly, recounted the single trauma of his adult life, namely that, having mislaid his credentials upon presenting himself to the senate after resigning his state job, he found himself, for a period of 16 minutes during his adult life — off the public payroll.

If McGovernism triumphs, nobody will ever be off the public payroll, not even for a dreadful, reactionary 16 minutes. Not unless the people's tribunal should happen to toll the dread words: "The great state of Idaho, home of the greatest potatoes in the peace-loving world, casts its 22 votes for taking John Doe off the public payroll." Cheers? When it happens, it will be John Doe vs the McGovern convention.

Potomac Fever —

Nixon has declared Sacramento, Calif., a major disaster area. No offense to Ronald Reagan — it's because of the flood.

Nixon told a group of broadcasters that government officials should cooperate fully with representatives of the news media. If they shape up and start asking smarter questions, right?

South Vietnam's President Thieu now gets to rule by decree. Rumor has it that Nixon is sending him a bouquet of coronations.

Jack Anderson said that the FBI and the secret service kept tabs on virtually every prominent black in America. And when Anderson checks tabs, they turn into flaps.

Justice Hallows' Warning About Courts Unnoticed

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The first lesson learned by the school child when he is taught the elementary principles of the American system of government is the idea of three coordinate, and equal branches of government of which the judiciary is one.

The judicial system today, moreover, is probably regarded more deferentially by the citizen than either the legislature or the executive, even in a time when some of the most bitter political conflicts are using the court as the arena of struggle.

But Wisconsin is today showing no audible or visible response to the warning of the top men of its constitutional judiciary system that it confronts a crisis that demands quick resolution, or it will risk the peril of a breakdown of that coordinate and coequal governmental branch as devised by the founding fathers.

Hallows Issues Warning

Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows a few days ago got another brief notice in the press dispatches when in an unprecedented fashion he delivered from the bench where he presides, on the final day of the court's crowded term, a solemn warning that the appellate court system is threatened with a breakdown.

More than 267 cases brought to it during the last 10 months remain on its calendar to be considered during the next term beginning in the fall.

Meanwhile, unless there is a reversal of trend that no one can reasonably expect, the number of appeals to the court will continue to grow. The time will soon come when parties and their counsel will confront the sobering reality that they cannot expect final decisions in less than a year and a half to two years, even if their causes prevail.

This is a serious turn of events in a state which has always prided itself on its awareness of the importance of efficient and timely functioning of the court system and the reality that justice delayed is justice denied.

There is a gubernatorial task force at work on the whole question of modernizing the court system and the operations of the institution.

That commission is working diligently and appears likely to produce findings that will be as comprehensive and thoughtful as any that have ever come out of similar reviews. Yet the fact is that the judiciary has changed less than any of the other basic public institutions of this state and that for all practical purposes, there has been no meaningful structural change in it during the 20th Century.

The puzzle is not in the lack of response from the rank and file of the people of Wisconsin. Average men and women have only a vague awareness of the courts and their operations. The state appeals court, especially, is a remote and august institution with which only a tiny fraction of the electorate ever has any direct contact. If even the aware citizen has any reaction to the talk about a log-jam in the tribunal, he probably feels that the lawyers should take the initiative to relieve it as they do in legislation affecting the courts and almost as routinely, the direction of judicial election campaigns and the counseling on judicial appointments.

Naive Assumption

Such an assumption by John Doe is natural enough, but it is not realistic. There is a popular notion that there are too many lawyers in the legislature, that they are too powerful there, and not always with total detachment, as shown by the groundswell of discontent about probate and its costs which relate directly to lawyer clout in the lawmaking process.

The idea that the bar will act legislatively to resolve the backlog in the Supreme Court is also naive. The successively more urgent warnings of the chief justice have been quite ignored by the big lawyer bloc in the legislature.

The evident indifference is the more important because relief will involve constitutional legislation, which means that under the most favorable conditions it cannot be had until four or five years hence.

It was suggested here some months ago that the court needs a press agent to win support for its cause. The suggestion was not facetious.

Cut Gordian Knot To End Drug Abuse

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We were chatting at lunch about the narcotics problem, and one of the men around the table happened to be Arthur Clarke, the science writer (best known for his "2001" film.)

Clarke said, "There's only one way to handle the problem in the U.S. And that's simply to cut the Gordian knot."

I asked him what he meant by that, and he explained.

"Don't make drugs legal — but make them free. If you do that, inside of six months the whole problem will evaporate. Those who take drugs to excess will have killed themselves, those who experiment will give it up because the thrill of the forbidden will be gone — and, most important of all, every dealer will be driven out of business."

"That seems a rather extreme solution," I demurred. "I don't think anything else will do the trick," he retorted. "As long as narcotics are a billion-dollar industry, and the demand is there, the only way to break it is to take the profits out of it."

"After all," he went on, "it's not the drugs that are responsible for the crime and violence in your big cities — it's the prohibitive price of them that makes addicts steal or kill to get the money. If you opened depots and let them get drugs for nothing, who would rob for it?"

"But isn't this condoning a terrible vice?" someone wanted to know.

Clark shrugged. "Drinking booze is rotten for you. Smoking cigarettes is rotten for you. We may have a duty to discourage personal vices, but we have no obligation to prevent people from engaging in them."

"We're not discouraging dope by offering it free to the public," I pointed out. "Wouldn't that turn more people into addicts?"

"I don't believe so," he said. "We offer it in England, at clinics, for those who care to register, and there's been no perceptible rise in addiction."

"It's basically a social and economic problem," he continued, "not a moral one. Enormous profits are to be made out of illegal drugs. When the profits are cut off, the criminals, being practical business men, will get out of the business. And the addicts themselves will have no reason to raise $100 a day or more to support their habit."

"You'll never get the American people to accede to a proposal like that," I said. "I expect you're right," he sighed. "Instead, you'll spend hundreds of millions for ineffective programs, that will only add to your bureaucracy and your national debt, and millions more for police and courts that won't solve the problem. You won't cut the Gordian knot until the noise is strangling you to death."

Tigers Pass Million Mark In Attendance

DETROIT (AP)—Maybe it's significant and maybe it isn't, but when the Detroit Tigers reached the million mark in attendance Monday night it was on the 41st home date—a day, sooner than they hit the figure in their 1968 world championship season.
"It's a credit to the sports fans in this area," General Manager Jim Campbell said. "We've got the best sports fans in the world right here."
Last season the millionth customer filed through the Tiger Stadium turnstiles on the 45th date.
A crowd of 41,900 saw the Tigers beat Chicago 3-1 Monday. The attendance brought the season total to 1,004,319. It is the 25th time in the last 28 years Detroit has drawn more than a million paying fans.

But Devine Wants Weight Loss Burrell Steals Show In Practice

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Charlie Burrell, a cherubic "Mr. Five-by-Five" of awesome breadth and startling strength, is fast becoming an ebony enigma to Dan Devine and the Packers board of strategy.
These qualities, dramatically exposed during Tuesday afternoon's "nutcracker" pyrotechnics on the South Oneida Street practice field, have made him the current cause celebre of the week-old training camp.
Yet there exists a very real chance that Charlie, an enthusiastic trencherman who was still a billyow 282 pounds after shedding 10 during the p.m. session, will eat himself out of Tittletown.
Devine, a strident taskmaster in these early days of the 1972 season, made this "perfectly clear" in assessing the portly Texan's future and potential following the marathon workout.
"Must Lose Weight
"Burrell isn't going to make the ball club if he doesn't take some weight off," he declared. "He's the kind of a guy I'd like to have on our football team, so I hope he will decide he wants to get down where we want him to be... But it's up to him."
A squat, roly-poly six-footer, the moustachioed Burrell had brought the "nutcracker" segment to a ludicrous and unexpected conclusion with a thunderous derailment of fullback John Brockington, certainly cavalier treatment of an all-pro by a 16 (last round) draft choice.
Overrunning the blocker before him, he not only stopped the NFC's "Rookie of the Year" in his ample tracks but drove him backwards with that explosive charge.
Brockington, his helmet rakishly rearranged over the bridge of his nose as the result of Burrell's greeting, then tilted onlooker with a "peace" gesture. Breaking into a crooked smile, he extended his right hand and a somewhat surprised Burrell, smiling in return, "shook" as their teammates and bystanders erupted in a collective chuckle.
"Nice Hit"
What Charlie later was asked, had Brockington said to him? He beamed and replied, "He told me it was a nice hit."
It was only one of an impactful series by the rookie defensive lineman, who smothered every thrust he was called upon to face, certainly an evidence of potential even though there was no need for lateral movement or ability to pursue.
Doubts have been expressed, however, that Burrell ever will melt off sufficient suet to satisfy Devine and Defense Coordinator Dave Hanner, ever insistent upon speed and quickness.
Soft-Spoken
But Charlie, an engaging, soft-spoken athlete, insists he will reach the desired tonnage, presumably a minimum of 270. "I'm ready to pay the price," he said. "I've been cutting down on my meals and I'm going to get that weight off. Coach Hanner told me I had to, although he didn't tell me just how much, if I hoped to make the ball club."
Burrell expressed surprise at his show of strength in the one-on-one exertions, although he admitted, "I knew what I had to do to make the team and I've been lifting weights in the off-season pretty hard... It's helped me — it's gotten me a lot stronger."
Aside from his avoirdupois, Charlie is most concerned about his reaction time at this point. "I have to come off the ball a lot quicker," he said. "I have to develop a few more techniques to do that."
The broad-beamed St. Augustine, Tex., native, the former all-SWAC shot putter in track at Arkansas A. M. & N., professes a great uncertainty about his Packer future at this point, as well he might.
"I don't have any idea what my chances are," he says, shaking his massive head. "But I'm going to give it my best shot... I love it here — it's real nice. And I'd love to stay."
PACKER PATTERN — "We're not even close to where I'd like to be," Devine volunteered following the afternoon exercises, "but we're further advanced than we were a year ago this time."
We've got a few great players and some good players but, in order to be a champion, you have to have a lot of great players. So some of our good players are going to have to be put forth, become great ones if we hope to win championships.
"But I just feel we're more people who are willing to do it, like a football team than we were last year at this point," and nobody is complaining."

Reiland Defeats Medalist

Tim Reiland defeated tournament medalist and fellow Wisconsin Rapids Bull's Eye competitor Dave Nimitz in the first round of match play in the Northeastern Wisconsin Golf Association Juniors Tournament at the Riverview Country Club.
Reiland won the match on the 20th hole. He went on to beat Clark Entzminger of Stevens Point in Tuesday afternoon's quarter-finals, 2-up.
In other Junior Championship quarter-finals matches, Bill Francis of Menominee, Mich., topped Waupaca's John Landis, 4 and 3. Kurt Janesky of the Elks Country Club in Manitowish Whipped Scott Herman of Bull's Eye, 8 and 7. Greg Lowink of Bull's Eye beat Bob Mallgren of Riverside in Menominee, 3 and 4.
Reiland faced Francis, and Janesky duels Lowink in this morning's semi-finals. The finals matches were later in the afternoon.
Riverview's John Brazner advanced to today's semi-finals with a pair of victories Tuesday, including a 6 and 4 over Brian Brun of the Elks Club. Other A Flight quarterfinals results saw Steve Johnson of Waupaca defeat Tom Konopaski of Stevens Point 2-up; Tom Schussler of Fond du Lac beat Bob Hibbins of Bull's Eye, 2 and 1; and Jerry O'Neill of New London beat Tim Pressentin of Green Bay, 7 and 6.

Miss Zimmermann, who has expressed feeling some pressure from the press and others who expect her to do well, lost her putting stroke to start the back side. She three-putted the 10th and 11th to fall down one.
But the defending champion shook off the pressure to win the 12th, 14th and 15th to take a two-hole lead.
Miss Zimmermann dropped a short putt on the 14th for a birdie after being disturbed by a photographer. The hole turned out to be a "key one" for the attractive brunette.
Won on 17th
Mrs. Houston won the par three 17th with a par, but lost to a par on the 489-yard 18th by Miss Zimmermann.
Mrs. Erickson never trailed as she eliminated Mrs. Cummings in 16 holes.
In today's other quarter-finals, Miss Feiterek was to play Miss Wiese, Miss Curran met Miss Ahern, and Mrs. Kimball faced Miss Schriber.
Mary Beth Hafeman, 15, from West Bend, won the juniors medalist honors Tuesday with a nine-over par 83.

Brewers . . .
as the Oakland slugger increased his season total to 18.
The Brewers scored for the first time during the evening in the first inning of the marathon on an error and a sacrifice by Bob Hesse. George Scott and Dave May of the San Francisco Giants and Milwaukee pitcher threw more in the late afternoon and night, a pattern that has been followed by Brock, Davis and O'Leary.
Former Oakland slugger Joe Rudi, at the plate after trying to score on a two-out single by Ron Theobald, Felipe had moved to first on an error and to second on a sacrifice.
Reggie Jackson provided the hitting punch for Oakland in the first contest by driving in a pair of runs with his 18th home run of the season in the fourth and a double in the eighth, which scored Rudi, who had walked.
The A's also tallied a run in the seventh off loser Earl Stephenson, 2-3, on an error by former Oakland third baseman Ron Clark.

Burma Ignores Opposition Force

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — The Ne Win government has demonstrated the contempt it holds for elements opposing it.

A plane flew over Rangoon in the middle of the night recently and showered thousands of leaflets. In Burmese and English, they proclaimed that the "combined patriotic forces loyal to the elected government, soon to return to Rangoon, have achieved deep penetration into zones soon to be liberated."

The leaflets called on government rebels, but added this warning: "Ne Win and the venal and unprincipled handful of brigadiers and colonels who are his cronies and henchmen recently have had a foretaste of the punishment that awaits them. These are desperate men, capable of any excess. We therefore caution the population against any overt act which may incite the dictatorship to punitive action. Burma's peoples have been subjected to enough suffering."

The leaflets got widespread distribution. Many Burmese, living up outside People's Shops for their kerosene rations, saw the plane.

State Papers

The state-owned newspapers, Guardian and Working People's Daily, showed how the government views contemptuously the rebel threats. They published front-page stories of the drop and obligingly ran photographs of the leaflets for those who didn't manage to pick one up in the street.

The leaflets came from the so-called "elected government of the Union of Burma," or what remains of the parliament and cabinet ousted and exiled by Gen. Ne Win after his 1962 coup d'etat.

Propaganda material, communiques and proclamations issued by the rebels and distributed in Bangkok claim the headquarters is in Taunggyi-Ko-Lone in upper Burma.

Western observers in Rangoon say it more likely to be close to the Thai border, or in remote areas of Thailand itself.

The rebels claim to have united minority groups — Karens, Shan, Chin, Kachins, Kaya, Mon and Nagas. "Battle reports" assert the "combined guerrilla forces of the patriotic forces of the elected government of Burma" are inflicting heavy casualties on the Burmese Army and now control large areas of Burma.

Exaggerated Claims

Diplomats in Rangoon dismiss the claims as exaggerations. One said: "U Nu's outfit is just another rebel group. This country's got a dozen of them. The Burmese government has been fighting rebels since 1949."

Many observers think that Burma's 125,000-man army, equipped with a hodge-podge of Russian, American, British, Israeli and home-made weapons, is more than a match for "U Nu's group," as it is still called.

They admit that these rebels are well equipped with modern automatic rifles and grenade launchers, made in the United States.

"If they could unite with the Karen and the Sahn and take one town like Moulmein, this government would become pretty shaky," a diplomat said.

"But I can't see it happening."

The main problem is that two million Karens, the toughest and best equipped of the minority groups, can't abide the Burmese whether they be led by U Nu or Ne Win.

Some persons in Rangoon consider the activities of the Burmese Communist party guerrillas to be the most serious threat to internal security.

The Communists, who number perhaps 2,000, have been active in remote areas along Burma's 1,200-mile border with China. Recently they have moved into the mountains of central Burma where they have been involved in clashes with Burmese security forces.

Election Won't Affect Expected Tax Increase

Average Bill Has Increased $2,000
In Last 10 Years

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — America's tax bill averages about $4,500 per household, or $2,000 more than 10 years ago, causing rumblings and mutterings about a tax revolt by those hardest hit.

But that's only half, or less than half of the story. As many, or more, are demanding greater government expenditures, for health and welfare especially, and Congress seems willing to go along with them.

The situation is developing into a mass confrontation of opposing philosophical and practical views on what course the country is to take. One group calls it a tax problem, the other a spending problem. Both demand reform.

Few politicians care to discuss it before November, but regardless of which course is taken over the long term, the outcome of the immediate battle seems likely to be—you guessed it—a tax increase in 1973.

Spending Commitments

The reason for this conclusion, now shared by a large number of economists and researchers, including the Brookings Institution, is that government spending commitments already exceed revenues.

With the fiscal 1973 budget deficit likely to be near $30 billion, the three-year total 1971-1973 may exceed $80 billion, a stupendous figure when measured against any other "peace-time" period.

Whether or not spending can be better controlled after 1973 depends to some extent on the outcome of this year's election, but it is worth noting that recent deficits were run up by a President who considers himself a spending conservative.

The past also offers a suggestion: Figures supplied by the Tax Foundation demonstrate that in recent years the country has been demanding more services from its government but has been more reluctant to pay the bills.

In 1962, the Foundation reports, expenditures per household by local, state and federal governments were $3,225. By 1968 the comparable figure was $4,676, and for 1972 it was more than $6,200.

Spending Advance

By contrast, taxes per household in 1962 were about $2,500, rising to more than $3,600 in 1968 and to more than $4,500 in 1972, a percentage rise of only 77.5 per cent, compared with a spending advance of 93 per cent.

While inflation has many causes, this gap between revenues and expenditures is often by economists as one of the underlying causes. Inflation, they point out, is really an unlegislated tax.

If a tax increase does come, what will be its form? Again, a lot depends on which party is most successful.

Present speculation puts a value added tax at the top of the list, especially if President Nixon is re-elected. Simply, this tax would be levied every time value is added to a commodity as it proceeds through the production process.

$15 Billion Revenue

Tax analysts figure such a levy would yield $15 billion in revenues to the federal government, but it also could erode the tax base. It would, for example, put upward pressure on prices and tend to discourage demand.

Higher income taxes also are mentioned as a possibility, no matter who is elected, although there is considerable feeling among economists that such a move would be accompanied by relief at lower income brackets.

Kissinger in Secret Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today that Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's security affairs aide, was holding secret Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Kissinger, who flew to Paris Tuesday, was meeting with Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, North Vietnamese negotiators.

Ziegler said Kissinger would return to Washington late Wednesday.

Until Ziegler talked to newsmen today there had been a veil of secrecy over Kissinger's whereabouts.

Kissinger did not return to Washington with President Nixon from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., Tuesday.

During previous absences from the public eye, Kissinger has gone to Peking and also engaged in secret talks on the Vietnam war.

The chief North Vietnamese negotiator, Le Duc Tho, said in Paris over the weekend he would be willing to meet with Kissinger again if he had something new to discuss on the war.

Egyptian Move Could Avert War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt's decision to oust Soviet military advisers and to take over military installations the Russians have been manning in Egypt aroused guarded optimism among some Israelis today that it might lessen prospects of war in the near future. Others thought it might remove a restraining influence.

The Egyptian move announced Tuesday also raised questions about Cairo's future relations with the Kremlin.

There was no official Israeli comment. One source said the government was waiting to see if the Russians really withdrew. Israeli newspapers described Egypt's action both as "daring" and "dangerous." The Jerusalem Post said the Soviet withdrawal could clear the way for Egypt to undertake "some kind of military adventure," but Cairo could not think in terms of major war without active Soviet assistance.

The Independent Haaretz said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "has given in to pressure from his army officers hostile to the Russians."

Initial Reaction
Silence was the initial reaction of the Soviet government to the action by a government in which it has invested billions of dollars. But some diplomats in Cairo speculated that the Kremlin and not Sadat was responsible for the withdrawal as the result of a secret agreement during President Nixon's visit to Moscow to phase down Soviet-American activity in the Middle East.

Announcing that his own soldiers will replace Soviet advisers and experts, Sadat said the Russians had let him down by not delivering arms promised in 1971 for confrontation with Israel.

The president also indicated friction over Soviet attempts to restrict the use of arms supplied Egypt. He said he had rejected such attempts and made clear on a visit to Moscow in April that Egypt would not tolerate dictation of its military policies.

Essence of Friendship
Sadat said the Russian ouster "does not touch in any way the essence of Soviet-Egyptian friendship" but it is necessary, he declared, to set "a new style for the coming stage of our friendship."

Even before Sadat's speech, an exodus of Russian officers from Egypt was visible, causing diplomats and officials in Cairo to buzz with speculation. The president said the withdrawal order became effective Monday but he did not make clear how many Soviets were involved. Informants in Cairo estimated the number at 10,000 to 20,000.

In Washington, it was estimated that 15,000 Russian military men were in Egypt, about half of them advisers and experts and the rest attached to Soviet units assigned to the Mediterranean and to Egyptian air defense.

The order did not apply to another 10,000 to 15,000 Russian civilian advisers on engineering projects, and the semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said it would not affect instructors to the Egyptian armed forces who train Egyptians to use the equipment Moscow supplies.

The training personnel started coming to Egypt in 1967, and the Egyptian property. However, this could be used to cloak a symbolic Egyptian takeover, with the Russians continuing to operate missile equipment.

A Beirut newspaper recently quoted the Soviet president, Nikolai Podgorniy, as saying there was a problem "in the ability of the Arabs to use modern weapons... Egypt has only a third of the pilots required for the planes in her possession now."

The departure of thousands of Russians will be popular in Egypt. Student demonstrators questioning relations with the Soviet Union blocked Cairo streets for nearly a week last January. The reception given Nixon in Moscow brought charges in Al-Ahram that the Russians had become two-faced.

Promised Arms
He said the two remain friends. But he complained of Soviet failure to deliver promised arms in 1971, the year he said was to have been "decisive" against Israel. And he indicated Moscow turned him down further this year on weaponry for an offensive against Israel.

After the Soviet's explanation of President Nixon's summit session in Moscow, he said in explaining his decision, "I felt, in light of all this, the need for a pause with the friend... during which we draw up together a method for the new stage of our friendship."

How far the Kremlin and Sadat will go to patch up this still-in-the-family dispute is going to be of prime interest to Washington strategists. Moscow's fortunes have run unevenly in the strategically important, oil-rich Mideast in recent times while U.S. authorities say America's stock is rising from its low in the Arab world after the 1967 war.

Yemen resumed diplomatic relations with the United States July 1. The Sudan is expected to follow suit shortly. Both broke ties with Washington in 1967. Both received sizeable Soviet aid before veering away from Moscow.

What impact the Cairo-Moscow friction may have on the stalled diplomatic effort for an Arab-Israeli settlement is among the questions still unanswered here.

Sadat spoke as if departure of the Soviets would free Egypt to battle with Israel. But some experts suggest how could the Egyptian ask, how could the Egyptian expect to defeat Israel without a lot of Soviet help?

Unstable Area
The bulk of the increased flow of imports will have to come from the unstable Middle East and North Africa," Ikard says. "The impact on our nation's balance of payments position of such heavy reliance on foreign oil should, alone, cause us to consider seriously other alternatives."

Right now the United States imports most of its oil from Canada and Venezuela. But those areas lack the capacity to expand production sufficiently for American needs. So the United States will be forced to rely increasingly on the Middle East and Africa, which have about two-thirds of the world's oil reserves. The United States had about 10.6 per cent of the world's oil reserves in 1961 but now has only 6.4 per cent of the world total, including the Prudhoe Bay Alaskan oil which is tied up in the courts.

"For the short range we're stuck with imported oil," said a spokesman for Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey). "Over the long range we have other options, like synthetic fuels, offshore drilling and nuclear energy. But it still all means the cost of energy is going to go up."

Industry sources say the United States doesn't have enough oil or gas to meet its rapidly expanding energy requirements. U.S. oil production has peaked in recent years, and environmentalists are holding up offshore drilling projects, and reserves are being depleted. The world's biggest reserves want more control, and American oilmen say there's no way out of the dilemma in the next decade.

"There's no way we can avoid a dramatic increase in our dependence on imported oil in the next 15 years," said E.B. Walker, executive vice president of Gulf Oil Corp. "We don't have enough domestic oil and gas to meet our growing needs and it's going to take a lot of money and a lot of time to develop synthetic fuels."

The American Petroleum Institute notes that for every four barrels of domestic oil taken out of the ground in 1971 the U.S. imported one, making imports account for 25.6 per cent of U.S. consumption last year. In 1961, imports were 19.3 per cent of U.S. consumption.

Frank N. Ikard, president of the API, predicts that dependence could leap to more than 50 per cent by 1985.

13 Charged in Drug Deals In Outagamie, Winnebago

Fox Valley and state authorities late this morning were continuing their roundup of 13 men charged with a total of 20 counts of trafficking in dangerous drugs and narcotics, including heroin, in Outagamie and Winnebago counties.

The arrests, which followed several months of undercover investigation, started this morning. However, only a few of the 20 counts of trafficking in dangerous drugs and narcotics, including heroin, in Outagamie and Winnebago counties.

Wisconsin Atty. General Robert W. Warren said the criminal complaints were authorized by Outagamie County Dist. Atty. James R. Long and Winnebago County Dist. Atty. William Carver. Arrest warrants were signed by Outagamie County Judge Nick E. Schaefer and Circuit Judge William E. Crane of Oshkosh.

Most of the alleged sales of drugs and narcotics were made to undercover agents of the Wisconsin Department of Justice, who were aided by policemen from the two counties and from a number of Fox Valley cities, Warren said.

Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin L. Spice said it was the first heroin-related arrest in the county. Heroin did not figure in any of the 11 charges lodged in Winnebago County, Carver's office said.

Most of the charges involved the sale of marijuana and hashish. At least two of the suspects have been charged with the sales of hundreds of "hits" of LSD. The sales of amphetamines also figured in some of the counts. Warren said his department began its investigation early this year on the basis of information furnished by a number of local police agencies. Spice said his narcotics squad also has been working with state agents and participated in today's arrests.

As of late this morning, two of the suspects had been arrested in Outagamie County. Three other men are still being sought, with one expected to be apprehended by noon.

Long said that Robert St. Arnold, 21, 150 E. Second St., Kaukauna, appeared this morning in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 on one charge of selling marijuana. An attorney was named to represent him and the case was continued to

July 20. St. Arnold is being held in the county jail on a $1,000 bond.

Jailed and awaiting arraignment is Thomas Howser, 22, 216 S. Douglas St., Appleton, who is charged with two sales of marijuana, one sale of 100 hits of LSD and the sale of two grams of heroin, for $200, on May 23.

Two of the men still being sought in Outagamie County face one count each and one faces two counts, some of those counts involving substantial amounts of LSD.

Four of eight suspects have been taken into custody in Winnebago County as of late this morning. None had appeared in court.

Carver's office identified those in custody as Joseph Ellis, 20, 639 Lake St., Neenah, two counts of selling marijuana; Brian Murray, 22, 1124 Elmwood Ave., Oshkosh, two counts of selling marijuana; and Michael J. Lyster, 21, 1124 Elmwood Ave., Oshkosh, two counts of selling marijuana.

Some LSD is involved in the five counts against the four persons who have not been apprehended, authorities said.

Politics Blamed for Delay In Minimum Wage Proposal

WASHINGTON AP — The over the Democratic national minimum wage bill has bogged down in the Senate amid charges by some sponsors that presidential politics are to blame for the delay.

The Democratic-sponsored bill would boost the wage floor from $1.60 to $2.20 an hour and make other changes in the law. It is of particular importance to the AFL-CIO.

The bill was brought up in the Senate Monday, but Republicans quickly countered with a substitute pushed by President Nixon that would put the minimum at $2 and eliminate many provisions of the Democratic proposal.

The substitute is strongly opposed by the AFL-CIO. Senate Democrats said they hope to defeat it.

They said they were particularly anxious to demonstrate their commitment to labor on the issue because of the unpopularity of some AFL-CIO leaders who plan to interrupt his rest and planning vacation in South Dakota to return here to vote on the minimum wage legislation.

But a number of Democrats, asking that their names not be used, said they believed McGovern should return at least to vote against the Republican substitute.

They said the minimum wage bill tops the list of AFL-CIO concerns in the 1972 election, and that the South Dakotan AFL-CIO executive council could improve his position with labor by flying to Washington to question of a presidential endorsement.

The Democrats said Republicans felt that pushing the $2 bill the GOP substitute. The provisions are of more interest to council session might hurt them with labor.

The role of Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic standard bearer, also came in for comment from some Democrats.

McGovern's office said he had pockets.

U.S. Might Soon be Burning Oil, Gas From Soviet Union

By LINDA RUBEY

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Will you someday be heating your home with oil from the Soviet Union? Or driving your car with gasoline from Western Siberia?

It is not so far fetched as it first appears.

For Tuesday the U.S.-owned Occidental Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles announced a five-year technical cooperation agreement with the Soviet Union. Experts in London said the most important part of the agreement was likely to be technical and financial assistance by Occidental in return for supplies of Soviet crude oil and natural gas.

These experts said the oil deal raises the prospect of Soviet oil and gas eventually flowing to the United States.

The potential American usage of Soviet oil is still in the future, but it underscores the burgeoning American dependence on foreign oil. Petroleum industry leaders attribute the dependence on a growing energy crisis here and the shortage of domestic reserves. Not only is the dependence pushing prices up, they say, it isn't likely to ease until new energy sources are developed.

It is estimated that foreign oil accounts for more than a fourth of U.S. consumption. Foreign nations with the world's biggest reserves want more control, and American oilmen say there's no way out of the dilemma in the next decade.

"There's no way we can avoid a dramatic increase in our dependence on imported oil in the next 15 years," said E.B. Walker, executive vice president of Gulf Oil Corp. # Chou Optimistic About International Affairs

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — As Chou En-lai sees it, "the international situation is excellent" even though "the situation in the Far East is far from relaxed."

In a speech this week to a delegation from Yemen the Chinese premier ticked off these points of optimism.

The North and South Koreans have made a preliminary agreement on reunification. India and Pakistan have reached partial agreement on troop withdrawal. The new Japanese government has promised to speed up normalization of relations with China.

He went on to say "However, the development of the international situation is complicated and tortuous. The superpowers will not cease their control over and interference in other countries, and the struggle between control and anticontrol and anti-interference will continue. This is the root cause of the upheavals and unrest in the present international situation."

Settle Problems

A case in point, he continued, is Indochina. There, he said, "U.S. imperialism persists in its military aggression and political interference in the three Indochinese countries and does not let the three Indochinese peoples settle their own issues according to their own will."

He concluded that this and U.S. refusal to withdraw its troops from South Korea left the Far East unrelaxed.

Peking broadcasts indicated that Chou did not refer to a critical area of tension in Asia—on China's own borders, where Chinese troops confront a million Soviet soldiers in an uneasy truce. In the light of this situation, Peking statements to the leaders of the U.S. House of Representatives, Hale Boggs and Gerald R. Ford, may be more significant than what Chou said to the Yemenis.

The Americans quote Chinese leaders as expressing concern about the United States will pull out 41 of Charlotte Sunday night of Asia and give Russia an opening in the area.

Broken Jaw Results From Good Luck Piece

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Police have charged a man with turning a traditional symbol of good luck into a deadly weapon.

They said Marvin Dillard, 32, of Charlotte was playing horse shoes with Jack D. Kennedy, 41, of Charlotte Sunday night when an argument arose. They accuse him of slugging Kennedy in the mouth with a horse shoe.

Kennedy suffered a broken jaw. Dillard was charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Outdoor Cooking Is 'In'

By Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

There's no doubt about it, outdoor cookery has become the thing to do. With good reason, too, because it's fun to have a barbecue or backyard picnic meal when the weather's either too hot for inside dining or just right for outdoor pleasure.

The custom used to be called dining "al fresco" or eating in the fresh air. Nowadays it's just a plain old barbecue, usually with the man of the family officiating at the grill when it comes to preparing the hamburgers, franks or brats just right. Milk, cooling drinks and beer are favorite beverages with some diners preferring the good, old hot cup of coffee.

For those looking for new ways to prepare outdoor meals, today's collection of recipes will supply the answers. Always remember, broiling and barbecuing may be different sides of the same cooking technique, they both are methods of cooking near the source of heat. Traditionally, the source of heat is above the meat for broiling while the heat source is below for barbecuing. Yet, any foods can come indoors when weather chills with the planned barbecue being neatly turned into a broil. It won't spoil the party a bit.

Another good idea: Use one of the clam bake steamers for a magnificent one-pot supper. Actually, any two-part steamer or large, covered pot with cover and inside rack makes a fine oven pot for an outdoors feast. Place it on top of the outdoor grill — gas, electric or wood burning. Pre-heating the water for the pot on the kitchen range may speed things up.

When the pot begins producing steam on the outdoor stove or barbecue, introduce the ingredients for the one-pot supper at 10-minute intervals in this order:

Precooked sausage cut into individual portions along with medium-sized unpeeled onions; then unpared, but scrubbed, carrots and frankfurters; then corn with silks removed but one or two layers of husks remaining. Steam for an additional 10 minutes after corn is added. Total cooking time should be 30 minutes. Test vegetables for doneness with a fork. Serve corn with Herb Butter.

Other recipes today feature seafood such as salmon steaks or other fish types done the "smoky way." Smoke cookery is a little slower than the usual cooking on a grill. It is achieved easily with a grill that has a hood. The heat and smoke circulate above and around the food, cooking and smoking evenly. The fire should be low.

Wet, hardwood chips, placed over the heated tiles on an electric or gas grill, or over glowing charcoal in a barbecue create the smoke and help maintain the proper temperature. A roomy, high-domed cover with a vent should be constructed for the barbecue without a hood.

Another new idea is to prepare a beef roast, right on the outdoor grill. Brown the meat first — boneless brisket rump or beef chuck — on the grill to give it the flavor. Then, wrap the meat with assorted vegetables and herbs in heavy duty aluminum foil. This allows the large piece of meat to mellow-cook slowly without charring or drying out.

Or prepare a stuffed steak in a unique but easy-to-do way. In the recipe, a finely seasoned mixture of onions, carrots, green pepper, mushrooms and pimiento-stuffed green olives literally dresses up the grilled or broiled steak with a bright color and succulent flavor.

Lamb chops, brushed with a spicy sauce, make elegant eating. Added information which will be welcome is the collection of barbecue recipes for vegetables of the canned variety, the frozen and even the frozen vegetable casseroles and rice dishes.

HERB BUTTER

One recipe that should be kept on hand for serving on cooked corn, baked potatoes or even cooked vegetables is this Herb Butter. It may be made ahead and reheated on the grill.

All it takes is the combination of 1 stick of butter or margarine that's melted, then blended with ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes, 1 pinch of thyme and 1 dash of seasoned salt. It's delicious as are all these Outdoor Specials.

SMOKY BEEF GRILL

- 3-3½ pounds boneless brisket rump or beef chuck
- 3 tablespoons salad oil
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup sliced carrot
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- ½ cup vinegar
- ½ teaspoon dried thyme
- 1 bayleaf, crumbled
- dash of pepper

Line grill with heavy duty aluminum foil — build fire about 30 minutes before cooking is to start.

Trim most of fat from meat and rub with salad oil. Place meat on grate directly over medium hot fire and brown, turning so all sides are browned.

While meat browns, assemble and combine remaining ingredients.

When meat is brown, remove from fire to a large sheet of heavy duty wrap. Pour vinegar mixture over meat. Bring two long ends of foil up over meat and double fold to make tight seal. Double fold remaining ends. Leave a little space in the package for juices, but have it airtight. Return to grill; place where heat is less intense. Cook slowly, about 2 hours, or until tested done. Recipe makes six to eight servings.

FISH STEAKS

- 6 salmon steaks (¾ to 1-inch thick) or other thick fish steaks, fresh or frozen
- ¼ cup orange juice
- ¼ cup soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
- ½ teaspoon oregano
- ½ teaspoon pepper

Thaw frozen steaks; dry. Place steaks in a single layer in a shallow baking dish.

Combine remaining ingredients. Pour marinade over fish and let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, reserving marinade for basting.

Place fish steaks on well-greased heavy-duty foil or on a well-greased hinged, wire grill and cook over moderately hot coals. Cook steaks for 5 to 8 minutes, baste, turn and cook for 7 to 10 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

OLIVE PEPPER RIBS

- 2 racks (about 2½ pounds each) spareribs
  - Boiling salted water
  - 1 tablespoon peppercorns
  - ½ cup pimiento-stuffed olives
  - 1 clove garlic, peeled and quartered
  - ¼ cup olive or salad oil
- Simmer spareribs in water

for about 1 hour or until tender; drain. Place spareribs on broiler pan with meaty side up. Place peppercorns in electric blender and whirl until cracked. Add all remaining ingredients to blender; blend until thick and fairly smooth. Spread mixture on meaty side of spareribs. Broil or grill about 6 inches from source of heat for 5 to 10 minutes or until browned. Serve spareribs garnished with parsley sprigs and sliced olives.

If blender not used, crush peppercorns with the side of a heavy knife and mix with the oil and ground or very finely chopped olives and garlic. Mix to form a paste.

GRILLED

CANNED VEGETABLES

Remove label and lid from can; do not drain. Place on grill over hot coals. Heat until liquid bubbles and vegetable is hot. If desired, drain. Top with a pat of butter. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

VEGETABLES FROZEN IN BUTTER SAUCE

VEGETABLES FROZEN IN SPECIAL SAUCES

Prepare the same as vegetables frozen in butter sauce, except cook over medium coals.

FROZEN RICE

FROZEN

VEGETABLE CASSEROLES

Remove frozen casserole from carton. Remove clear cover from tray and cover loosely with foil. Place on grill over medium coals for 45 to 60 minutes or until center feels hot.

FROZEN

CORN-ON-THE-COB

Remove frozen corn from bag; wrap each ear individually in heavy foil. Place on grill over hot coals for about 60 minutes. Turn occasionally. Open foil; season to taste.

FIESTA

LAMB CHOPS

- 6 loin lamb chops, cut 1½ inches thick
- Pepper
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 12 ounces chili sauce

- ½ teaspoon chili powder
- ¼ teaspoon cumin
- ¼ teaspoon allspice
- ¼ teaspoon oregano
- Salt

Dust lamb chops with pepper; set aside.

In heavy saucepan, cook garlic in salad oil until very lightly browned, stirring constantly. Add chili sauce, chili powder, cumin, allspice and oregano; heat through, stirring. Season to taste with salt.

Grill chops 3 to 5 inches from the source of heat, 5 to 7 minutes on each side, or until desired degree of doneness, brushing frequently with sauce. Heat remaining sauce and serve with chops.

GRILLED

STUFFED STEAK

- ½ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup finely chopped green pepper
- ¼ cup coarsely grated carrots
- ¼ cup finely chopped celery
- ½ cup chopped mushrooms
- ¼ cup finely chopped

pimiento-stuffed olives ...

- Black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon ground thyme
- ¼ teaspoon sage
- 1½ inch thick boneless sirloin steak, about 2 pounds (with pocket cut for stuffing)
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire
- 1 small clove garlic, crushed
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
- Salt

Saute onions in butter until crisp-tender; add green pepper, carrots and celery and continue cooking until green pepper and celery are crisp-tender.

Remove from heat; stir in mushrooms and olives. Add a dash of black pepper, thyme and sage. Spoon stuffing into pocket of steak; close pocket with large needle and cord or metal skewers.

Combine oil, lemon juice, Worcestershire, garlic and parsley, brush on steak. Place steak on broiler rack or grill. Broil, 4 to 5 inches from source of heat, for 14 to 15 minutes for medium doneness. Sprinkle with salt and brush with remaining oil mixture. Turn and broil 14 to 15 minutes longer or until steak is of desired doneness. Sprinkle with salt and place on platter. Remove cord. Garnish with parsley and additional olives.

OLIVE

FRANKFURTERS

- 8 frankfurters
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- ¼ cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
- 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
- Dash Tabasco
- 8 frankfurter rolls, split in half and toasted

Split frankfurters lengthwise without cutting all the way through. Arrange frankfurters on grill, cut side down; grill 4 minutes.

Foxes Return Home After Postponement

The Appleton Foxes, holding a precarious .010 percentage point lead in the Midwest League's Northern Division, opens a 5-day stand against virtual co-leader Waterloo at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Rain postponed the Foxes game at Danville Tuesday while Waterloo was sweeping a pair of 2-1 games from Cedar Rapids. Appleton owns a 13-8 record, while Waterloo is 14-9.

Clinton will follow Waterloo into Goodland Field for a 3-day stand.

The Foxes will get their only scheduled respite of the season as the league takes a two-day All-Star break. The game will be played in Wisconsin Rapids Monday with Tuesday a travel day.

Shiocton banged out 12 hits with Dick Johnson leading the attack with four for five including a double. Bob Nelson, Ron Knaack and Gary Knaack had two hits each for the winners.

Howie Vanden Elzen was charged with the loss.

Murtaugh Names NL All-Star Staff

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Manager Danny Murtaugh of the National League All-Star team has named nine pitchers to next Tuesday's game, including Steve Blass, who pitched Murtaugh's Pittsburgh Pirates to victory in the seventh game of last year's World Series.

Besides Blass, who has a 10-3 record this year, Murtaugh named league percentage leader Gary Nolan of Cincinnati and major league strikeout leader Steve Carlton of Philadelphia among seven right-handers and two left-handers on the staff for the game in Atlanta.

One pitcher who didn't get named was Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago, last year's Cy Young Award winner and a 12-game winner this year.

Names Seaver
The other six pitchers on the team are right-handers Tom Seaver of New York, Bill Stoneman of Montreal, Don Sutton of Los Angeles, Clay Carroll of Cincinnati and Bob Gibson of St. Louis and left-hander Tug McGraw of New York.

Murtaugh, who retired because of health problems after last season, picked only the

Webster Waits for Absentee Kicker

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — There are 77 other Green Bay Packers sweating and straining at the Oneida St. practice field this week, but the one who matters most in Tim Webster's future is not among them. Webster is the placekicker who sufficiently impressed a year ago to win a job, a prize not often accorded rookie free agents. But he knows the Packers still felt insecure enough about the position to expend a second round draft choice for Chester Marcol, highest ranking kicker in the colleges last year.

Marcol and two other rookies, Willie Buchanan and Jerry Tagge, are with the College All-Stars and won't arrive here until July 30. But if Webster worries about Marcol's coming, he doesn't admit it.

Chances Good
"I feel my chances are very good," said Webster, who never had kicked a field goal in organized football in his life until last Dec. 5 when he connected on three of five attempts, including a 27-yarder that tied the St. Louis Cardinals with three seconds to play.

"It didn't really surprise me that they went for Marcol," he said. "But I can't say it gave me any incentive to work harder, because I would have worked hard anyway. It's probably all for the better. I'd say."

Webster's stock, along with Marcol's, ascended this week when Coach Dan Devine said veteran placekicker Lou Michaels probably would be allowed to make a deal for himself.

Carroll was named to last year's team but didn't pitch. His Cincinnati teammate Nolan, one of the leading candidates to start this year's game, has a season record of 13-2 for an .866 percentage. The eight starters at the other positions have been picked by fans in a nationwide vote. Murtaugh will name the rest of the squad.

Advances to Quarter-Finals Miss Zimmermann Disappointed In Play Despite 2-Up Victory

BY GENE LILLGE
Post-Crescent Golf Editor
Despite what she called a disappointing round, Vicki Zimmermann took a first big step in defense of her Women's State Amateur championship Tuesday at the Butte des Morts Golf Club.

In a round marred by a shaky short game and an anxious photographer, the 21-year-old University of Texas coed rallied to win three of the final five holes to defeat Mrs. Kenneth Houston of Green Bay Northbrook, 2-up, and advance to today's quarter-finals.

"My short game was way off and my putting was horrible," the two-time tournament medalist said after her match.

Mrs. Frank Kimball of Briggsville, who led Miss Zimmermann seven-up after 13 holes in the final match of last year's meet but lost on the 36th green, headed the group of other championship winners Tuesday. Mrs. Kimball beat Mrs. Richard Welch of Madison, 5 and 3.

No Surprises
There were no surprises in Tuesday's championship matches.

In other first round results

Mrs. John Erickson of Milwaukee's Westmoor Country Club defeated Oshkosh's Mrs. Steven Cummings, 3 and 2; last year's juniors champ Nancy Feifarek of Madison bested fellow Madisonian Mrs. Hugh Hayes, 2-up;

20-year-old Debbie Weise of Elkart Lake topped Mrs. Patrick Levenhagen of Milwaukee, 6 and 4; Kathleen Curran of Antigo Bass Lake beat Mrs. Lawrence Brodd, 2 and 1; Kate Ahern of Fond du Lac South Hills stopped mystery Hills' Sue McAllister, 3 and 2; and Oshkosh Country Club's Si Si Schriber downed Mrs. John Brady of Milwaukee, 6 and 5.

Mrs. Erickson, runnerup to the state champion in 1969 and 1961, faces Miss Zimmermann today.

The smooth swinging Miss Zimmermann lost the first hole to a par, but went up on when she second hole and the par-five fourth.

Padres' Arlin Fails in No-Hit Bid; Zimmer Takes Blame

By TOM EMORY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Steve Arlin, the San Diego pitcher who is a dentist in the offseason, was offered a non-dental instrument by Manager Don Zimmer, who thought he had cost his right-handed star a no-hitter.

"Here," said Zimmer, handing Arlin a razor blade and pointing to his own throat. "make it quick."

Arlin pitched 6½ innings of no-hit baseball Tuesday night before giving up two hits in the ninth inning. The Padres beat Philadelphia 5-1 but the loss of the no-hitter was a letdown for the 26-year-old pitcher, his manager and teammates.

Phillies' infielder Denny Doyle stroked a single over the head of third baseman Dave Roberts to break up Arlin's bid. The pitcher was unnerved and balked, then gave up another hit to Tom Hutton, which scored a run.

Messed Up
"I messed it up," said Zimmer. "I had Roberts playing in. If he plays back, he fields the ball. I messed it up."

In other National League games, San Francisco blanked Montreal 3-0, Houston thumped St. Louis 11-3, Atlanta beat Pittsburgh 4-2, Chicago edged Cincinnati 2-1 and Los Angeles trimmed New York 2-1.

"I was confident of that no-hitter in the eighth, and certain of it in the ninth when I got two outs," said Arlin, who led the National League in losses with 19 last year. "When Doyle hit the ball on the ground, I thought it was all over. Then I saw Roberts was playing shallow and thought 'oh no.'"

Arlin got plenty of offensive help from Nate Colbert, who drove in three runs with a double and his 21st homer of the season. He also got an outstanding defensive play from second baseman Derrel Thomas, who stopped Doyle's grounder in the hole in the sixth and threw to first while sitting on the ground.

No Surprise

For Philadelphia, Arlin's success in the major leagues is no surprise. He signed with the Phils for a reported bonus of $108,000 in 1966, but was claimed by San Diego in the 1968 expansion draft. The Padres supposedly gave the Phils $200,000 for the rights to Arlin.

"Listen," said Phils Manager Paul Owens, "after what I've seen, if we can get him, they can have their money back."

Left-hander Ron Bryant's four-hit pitching gave him his fifth straight victory and brought his record to 8-4. He struck out four Montreal players and walked just two. Rookie Garry Maddox backed Bryant with a two-run homer, his seventh of the season. The Giants' final run came when, with a man on third, Expo starter and loser Balor Moore, 1-4, balked.

Cards Lead

Cesar Cedeno and Lee May each drove home two runs with homers and Jim Wynn added a pair with a double for Houston. Ted Simmons' three-run double had given St. Louis a 3-2 lead before Cedeno laced his inside-the-park circuit. Two infield errors and a passed ball helped the Astros rally for four runs in the eighth.

Atlanta used a Ralph Garr double, an error and an infield out to come from behind Pittsburgh. The Braves increased their margin to 4-1 in the seventh on Earl Williams' 14th homer and the Pirates added a run on two singles and a sacrifice fly by Al Oliver.

"There is just no way there can be any line-up of hitters in baseball close to Pittsburgh's," said Atlanta's Ron Reed, 8-10, who gave up 10 hits. "They just send eight solid hitters up there. I was getting shots hit off me all over the ballpark but they were being caught."

Billy Williams stroked his 21st homer to give the Chicago Cubs the winning run in their 10-inning battle with Cincinnati. Ferguson Jenkins gave up Tony Perez' 15th homer and was in trouble often but managed to record his 12th victory. Ron Santo drove home the Cubs' first run in the sixth with a sacrifice fly.

Frank Robinson ended a 10-inning battle in Los Angeles with his 11th homer. The Ali-

Institute on Aging Passed by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to put new emphasis on health problems of America's aged and perhaps find ways to slow the process of growing old.

By 300 to 10, the House passed and sent to the Senate Tuesday a $20 million authorization bill to provide a new federal focal point for dealing with health needs of the elderly.

This includes setting up a new national institute of aging within the existing National Institutes of Health—an idea opposed by the Nixon administration—and providing a grant program for mental health clinics to serve the aged.

In his report to the House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., said it has been pointed out at hearings "that we understand very little about the aging process, and means to slow

It has been discovered that the average lifespan of a number of strains of mice can be significantly increased by the addition of one of a number of relatively common chemicals called antioxidants to the daily diet.

"In some cases these increases in average lifespan have been as much as 25 to 45 percent and it may be that this could be done in human beings as well. We seem to be near the practical limit of our ability to increase the average lifespan through conventional means."

The administration contended it would be impractical and unproductive to consider diseases only as they affect the aged and proposed the idea of a separate institute.

The House, over opposition, also voted 290 to 10 to authorize $29 billion for a three-year battle against diseases of the heart, lungs and blood, and 288 to 2 to authorize $276 million for a three-year extension of communicable disease-control programs covering venereal diseases, measles and tuberculosis.

The Senate has voted for a three-year, $147 billion heart bill and a five-year, $750 million communicable disease control bill. If the Senate declines to accept the House-passed versions, it would be up to a conference committee to seek a compromise.

Miami Thermometer Was Slightly Wrong

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tourists wearing typically scanty July attire did double-takes when they wheeled past a giant thermometer sign on Biscayne Boulevard.

There, among the swirling palm trees, the digital thermometer read 3 degrees below zero Tuesday.

Policemen Dismissed After Saving Life

WISCONSIN DELLS, Wis. (AP) — The dismissal of two police officers, whose violation of a department rule apparently saved a woman's life, was upheld Tuesday by Mayor Roy Kelly.

Kelly agreed with the city's Police and Fire Committee that officers Dean Willard and William Jax should be dismissed because of the May 24 incident in which they left the city limits to the woman after she was struck by a car about four miles from Wisconsin Dells.

Dr. James Lewis has said niles suspected of car theft and that if the woman had arrived at the Baraboo hospital "20 or 30 minutes later than the time she was actually brought into the emergency room," she would have died.

Police Chief Hans Mickelson said there has been a department rule for 10 years which forbids officers to leave the city in the line of duty.

The two officers have also been accused in an unrelated incident of failing to complete a police report on a juvenile felon suspected of car theft and police processing on two juveniles failing to notify the juveniles' parents.

Chess Playoffs Proceeding

Match No. 4 Ends in Tie

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — After quickly making the first few moves, the two settled Spassky was running out of time, and soon after the two called it a draw.

The crowd gave them a standing ovation.

Fischer needs 12½ points to win the world title and Spassky needs 12 points to retain it. One point is awarded for a win and half a point for a draw.

At the 45th move Fischer extended his hand to Spassky and the Russian accepted.

With each player picking up half a point on the draw, the score is 2½-1½ in the Russian's favor. The fifth match in the 24-game series is Thursday at noon CDT.

Fischer had the white pieces Tuesday and with them the first move and led off with his favorite Sozin attack, P-K4.

The Russian pulled a surprise by counter-attacking aggressively and sacrificing a pawn to open up useful lines of attack.

Goeran Gentele, Daughters Die

Met's New Boss Killed in Crash

Gentele

NEW YORK (AP) — Stunned by the death of Goeran Gentele, the new general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, the Met's board of directors meets today to discuss the company's future.

Gentele, 54, and two of his daughters, Cecelia Anne, 21, and Beatrice, 15, were killed Tuesday when a car the conductor was driving collided head-on with a truck in Sardinia, where the family was vacationing.

Gentele's wife, Marit, and daughter Janette, 27, were tak-

Probe Cites Arson in Fire, Sinking of Liner Elizabeth

HONG KONG (AP) — The fire that destroyed the former luxury liner Queen Elizabeth Jan. 9 was probably deliberately caused by persons unknown, a marine court of inquiry said today.

"There were at least three major sites of fire, all of them occurring within minutes of each other, and there may have been other independent sites as well," the court said after a two-month inquiry ordered by the Hong Kong government.

"While there is no direct and conclusive evidence on the matter, the court is also satisfied that by far the most likely cause of the fires was a series of deliberate acts by a person or persons unknown."

Welding and cigarettes were ruled out as possible causes of the fire.

The 83,000-ton ship, once the pride of the Cunard fleet, had been bought by Hong Kong shipping magnate C.Y. Tung and was undergoing renovation to be used as a floating university. The work was almost complete when fire engulfed the ship at anchor in Hong Kong harbor.

Totally Afire

Within minutes she was ablaze from stem to stern. No lives were lost, but after burning fiercely for 24 hours the ship rolled over on her side and now rests on the bottom with her twin funnels and part of her twisted superstructure jutting at an angle above the water.

Experts are considering whether to break the wreck up on the spot or try to refloat it so it can be towed to a breaker's yard. The loss has been estimated at about $12 million.

The inquiry was made by Supreme Court Judge Art M. McMullen, assisted by two British marine experts, retired Commodore John D'Oyley Green and naval architect John Robson.

The 40,000-word report said it was significant that the fires started "when virtually all the workmen had withdrawn for lunch ... when most of the areas initially affected could reasonably be expected to be and to a large extent were free of human traffic ..."

"The speed with which each fire gained ground and became uncontrolled denotes an initial outbreak of considerable size and of great immediate spread, indicating the possibility of the use of some highly inflammable reagent. Once a recent visitor to North Viet-

Treason Charge Urged Against Jane Fonda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Fletcher Thompson, R-Ga., has accused actress Jane Fonda of treason and said the Justice Department should take action against her.

Miss Fonda, Thompson told the House, was quoted last week by Radio Hanoi as urging U.S. military personnel in Vietnam to disobey orders against her. "This is treason," he said, "and it is giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

He said he was asking the attorney general to bring charges of treason against Miss Fonda.

Booby Trap Injures Palestinian Leader

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Jordanian intelligence "Savegh" who is well known in the Arab world as a writer on Palestine and Arab affairs, was injured when a booby trap exploded as he opened his desk drawer at the Palestine Research Center backed by the Palestine Liberation Organization. The PLO is dominated by Al Fatah, the largest and most ideological of the commando groups.

On Tuesday a group that called itself Supporters of Free Lebanon claimed it was responsible for the death on July 9 of a Palestinian commando leader.

Another bomb concealed in a parcel went off Tuesday at the Rif Bank, injuring a Lebanese employee and causing minor damage.

No Room at Top For Truckdriver

PINEVILLE, La. (AP) — The Main Street underpass has a 12-foot clearance and a truck trailer 13½ feet high tried to go through it Tuesday.

Warren to Begin Own Probe Of State Real Estate Deals

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren said Tuesday that he will start an investigation of state real estate and lease transactions in the wake of press accounts of questionable deals with private investors.

Warren said that he was taking his action in response to a request of the state Senate organization committee. The investigation, to parallel the work of a special committee set up by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, will be concluded by the end of the year with a report to the Senate committee, Warren said.

The committee consisting of Sens. Robert P. Knowles, New

Richmond, and Ernest Koppier, Sheboygan, both Republicans, and Democrat Fred Blaser of Madison, approved a request for the investigation from Sen. Milo Knutson, R-LaCrosse.

The committee told Warren that Knutson's request was based on news accounts which "have disclosed so-called 'deals' on the part of state employees which, while not necessarily outright criminal violations, have all the earmarks of being 'improper' and in one instance, seemed to have the effect of rescuing one individual, presently a state official, from his private financial troubles at a loss to Wisconsin taxpayers of over a million dollars."

The charge apparently referred to the sale of Lowell Hall by Robert Levine to the University of Wisconsin. Levine is now state Selective Service chief. Warren has charged that the building, purchased by the state for $3.5 million, was actually worth $2 million.

The organizations committee request suggested that Warren use discretion in the areas investigated, and urged him to concentrate on matters which call for legislative action.

Among deals revealed by the press were real estate transactions of the state Investment Board, including the purchase and subsequent sale almost five years later of a life insurance company building in Madison.

The building was sold to private investors for $625,000, the same price the state agency had paid for it, and the building was rented from the private investors by another state agency for agency office space at a rental rate sufficient to meet payments on a mortgage issued by the investors by the Investment Board.

The investors were required to make a down payment of only $30,000 in the deal.

Vocational Counseling Grant Okayed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Grants totalling almost $120,000 designed to steer Northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan youths toward jobs have been made by the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission.

Included is $41,975 for the Northeast Wisconsin In School Television (NEWIST) to finance the production and distribution of films depicting job opportunities available to youths, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey announced Wednesday.

The second grant will provide $77,150 to finance a mobile van which supplies vocational counseling service for sparsely populated areas of Northern Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula.

A total of $32,150 of that money has been earmarked for use in Wisconsin, according to Lucey.

The NEWIST project comes in the wake of the production of 20 career films by the agency. Those films have been shown in more than 35 school districts and on television stations in three Upper Great Lakes states.

No Second UW Law School

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey turned a cold shoulder on a proposed second University of Wisconsin Law School Tuesday, suggesting instead that classes in the existing school be enlarged if there is a need for additional lawyers from a state school.

Lucey said that his "initial reaction" to a proposed second UW Law School was "quite negative," but said that he was willing to delay a final conclusion until he has a chance to study the final UW System regent position statement on the matter.

To date the regents have taken no action on a Madison campus chancellor's study committee report that said that a second law school is required by the UW, and that it should be difficult to see now how the private Jesuit institution could receive the state assistance.

State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, and legal profession forces in the Fox Valley area, have been pushing as well agreed for the creation of a second school in conjunction with the UW-Green Bay.

Lucey said that Harvard Law School can produce equality with lawyers with class sizes of 40, law school as well. There has been considerable pressure from within the Wisconsin bar for additional law the same size. In recent years school spaces in light of admissions to the UW Law School on the Madison campus, have averaged about 300 per year for the three year course. It would be cheaper to finance additional programs of this sort at the existing Madison school than to create a new school elsewhere, said Lucey.

Lucey made his comments at a news conference, and later amplified them to say that he was leaving the door open to possible state aid to the Marquette Law School as an alternative means of producing additional lawyers if they are needed in Wisconsin.

In light of a recent state Supreme Court ruling barring a state aid for the Marquette dental school, however, it is difficult to see now how the private Jesuit institution could receive the state assistance without severing all connections with its law school, Lucey said.

The university took that step to acquire state aid for its faltering medical school, but it is considered doubtful that it would be willing to give up its law school as well.

There has been considerable pressure from within the Wisconsin bar for additional law

Urge Study on Effect Of All Nuclear Plants

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The effect of all nuclear plants bordering Lake Michigan should be considered at the hearing on whether to license the Point Beach No. 2 reactor unit, a lawyer for three environmental groups contended Tuesday.

Myron Cherry of Chicago said the lake was at a "critical point" and another plant, which might not even be needed, could "tip the scales" in the wrong direction.

"At each hearing (concerning various nuclear power plants) I'm told I can't talk about the whole ball game," Cherry told the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board.

Board chairman Robert Lazo told Cherry—who represents Businessmen for the Public Interest, the Sierra Club and Protect Our Wisconsin Environment—that the panel had no authority over Lake Michigan as a whole.

Minor Project UWGB Construction OK'd; UWO's Isn't

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The state Building Commission Tuesday approved $36 million in minor construction projects in the University of Wisconsin System during the coming year, over the protests of one lawmaker that planned remodeling projects at the UW-Green Bay and Parkside are extravagant and unneeded.

State Sen. Milo Knutson, R-LaCrosse, protested a $324,720 project at Parkside and a $143,750 project at Green Bay, saying that the newly created schools should not need such extensive remodeling shortly after being opened to students.

Warren Exo, a UW System building official, told the commission that the projects were called for in the long-range building plans of the two new schools. The buildings were constructed with provisions for temporary dual use, and are being converted to the planned uses, he said.

Laboratory Building
Originally designed to include temporary classroom space, the Parkside building is being converted to a laboratory building, making the conversion costs especially high, Exo told the commission.

The minor project list was approved, after being trimmed by a subcommittee from a proposed $6 million requested by the system. The 1971-73 biennial minor project budget for the merged system had $5.8 million remaining before the commission took its action.

The only Northeastern Wisconsin project deleted from the proposed list was a $213,600 UW-Oshkosh physical education outdoor development project proposed on the west side of the campus. The $143,750 UWGB College of Environmental Science conversion project was the only UWGB proposal on the list, and it was approved.

Oil, Silt Trap
The commission also referred a $12,000 antipollution oil and silt trap at the Grand Army Home at King, on the advice of state engineers that there was no guarantee that the proposed installation would work.

John Moses, head of the Department of Veterans Affairs, proposed that the trap and oil skimmer be installed to cut pollution in nearby lakes by preventing oil and silt from washing into the lake through a storm sewer system.

But state engineering officials indicated that the trap and skimmer as proposed would not successfully prevent pollution.

Tentative approval, subject to an attorney general's review, was also given to a proposed $70,000 Food Research Institute at the UW-Madison. A dormitory would be converted into the center and operated in part through a $50,000 grant from the McDonald's hamburger chain.

DNR Sued by Fall Victims

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Three University of Wisconsin students and their fathers filed a $3.2 million lawsuit Tuesday charging the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) with negligence.

The suit, filed in Dane County Circuit Court, stems from a 1970 accident at Partreys Glen, a park operated by the DNR in Sauk County.

In the suit Norma Boyle of Janesville alleges she suffered permanent injuries when she fell 95 feet from a cliff only a foot off a trail while attempting to retrieve her jacket from a tree limb.

Jane Cords of Janesville and Susan Henry of Green Bay fell from 45 to 50 feet into the glen while descending to aid their friend, the suit says. It asserts that Miss Cords will never walk again as a result of the accident.

The DNR has filed a demurrer challenging the suit, claiming the Wisconsin statutes provide the state has no liability for injuries persons receive when they willingly enter publicly owned recreational lands.

Judge W.L. Jackman has scheduled a hearing for July 26. The plaintiffs have initiated a similar suit in Sauk County naming DNR officials as defendants.

Win a Trip to Walt Disney World

COME INTO SEARS AND REGISTER TODAY!

As the winning child, you'll be your area's delegate to Pooh's nominating convention. Yes, Sears nominates Winnie-the-Pooh for President... and wants you to meet Pooh, his friends, and hear what Pooh as President can do!

Any child between 1 and 7 is eligible to win. The winner will be a delegate to the convention and may be accompanied by two adults, and one child. To enter, color and complete the Pooh-For-President coloring picture and deposit it in the Pooh-For-President Coloring Box located in the children's department in any of the Sears stores listed below. Contest closes Aug. 12, 1972, 9:30 P.M. No purchase necessary. Two finalists will be selected from each of the stores listed, and the winner of the trip selected from these. All entries will be judged on the basis of age of child, completeness, neatness, originality and choice of color, by independent judges. The decision of the judges is final; all entries become the property of Sears and cannot be returned. The two finalists from each store will receive a Winnie the Pooh wardrobe (value $25).

Employees of Sears, Roebuck and Co., Walt Disney Productions, Eastern Airlines, their advertising agencies and members of their immediate families are not eligible.

THE WORD IS OPTIMUM

But state engineering officials indicated that the trap and skimmer as proposed would not successfully prevent pollution.

Tentative approval, subject to an attorney general's review, was also given to a proposed $70,000 Food Research Institute at the UW-Madison. A dormitory would be converted into the center and operated in part through a $50,000 grant from the McDonald's hamburger chain.
